2016 National Training Conference on the Toxics Release Inventory (TRI) and Environmental Conditions in Communities

Exhibit Booths & Poster Displays

Exhibit Booths – Hermitage Room and Ballroom Foyer

New Version of TRI-MEweb: Coming in January 2017
Juan Parra, U.S. EPA

Using TRI Data to Build Web-Based GIS Applications
Matthew Wormus, Oklahoma Department of Environmental Quality

Exploring a TRI-based Game as an Educational Tool: A Case Study of Toxic Release! and the TRI University Challenge
Dr. Curt Gervich, SUNY Plattsburgh Center for Earth and Environmental Science

Center for Health, Environment and Justice (CHEJ)
Abby Esplana

The Pollution Prevention (P2) Search Tool: Industry Analysis to Identify Actions to Reduce Toxics
Sandra Gaona, U.S. EPA

What Can TRI Tell You about Human Health Risks?
Kara Koehrn, U.S. EPA

Building Partnerships to Support Sustainable Manufacturing: Lessons from Louisiana's Chemical Corridor
Elizabeth Shephard, LifeCity

TRI Data Access and Analysis Tools - Demonstrations and One on One Assistance
Steve Witkin, U.S. EPA

U.S. EPA Superfund, TRI, EPCRA, RMP, and Oil Information Center
Christopher Barkey, Booz Allen Hamilton

Demonstrating the Use of the Risk Screening Environmental Indicators (RSEI) Model
Wayne Davis, U.S. EPA

Promoting Public Access and Understanding of TRI Water Releases through the Discharge Monitoring Report Pollutant Loading Tool
Eva Knoth, Eastern Research Group, Inc. (ERG)

Get to Know TRI
Sarah Swenson and Caitlin Briere, U.S. EPA

Poster Displays – Ballroom Foyer

Examining Patterns of Exposures: Using TRI Data to Build a Snapshot of Multiple Environmental Exposures in North Carolina
Adam Benson, Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education (ORISE) Research Participant

Is Water Pollution An Environmental Justice Issue? A Case Study of California And Louisiana
Olivia Trombadore and Dr. Jill Sohm, University of Southern California

Toxic Release Mapping for Chester County: Integrating TRI Data in Engineering Curriculum at Lincoln University
Dr. Monica Gray, Lincoln University

(Continued on back)

GuideME: The New Way to Access TRI Guidance
Erik Edgar and David Turk, Abt Associates/U.S. EPA

Assessing Environmental and Social Determinants of Health Among African Americans from Rural and Urban Mississippi
Mark Dugo, Mississippi Valley State University

EPCRA and the Internet Revolutionize Information Access
Andrew Stoeckle, Abt Associates

End to End Data Quality Assurance – A Holistic Approach to Automating the Data Lifecycle
Erin Manitou, ERA Environmental Management Solutions

What can TRI Tell You about Human Health Risks?
Kara Koehrn, U.S. EPA

Do You Have a Question? P2 Data Might Have an Answer.
Sandra Gaona and Diana Wahler, U.S. EPA

Pollution Prevention Information in TRI Continues to Increase
Sandra Gaona, U.S. EPA

Risk-Screening Environmental Indicators (RSEI): New Developments
Wayne Davis, U.S. EPA