The Antimicrobial Testing Program –

List of Hospital Disinfectant and Tuberculocidal Products Tested or Pending Testing

EPA registers antimicrobial products (e.g., sterilants, disinfectants, sanitizers) under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA). Antimicrobial products that are used in hospitals and other healthcare settings are categorized as hospital disinfectants. Many hospital disinfectants also have label claims as tuberculocides. EPA-registered hospital disinfectants and tuberculocidal products are routinely used on hard, nonporous surfaces in schools, offices, homes, and hospitals as a part of infection control programs.

Hospital disinfectants must be effective against both Staphylococcus aureus and Pseudomonas aeruginosa to meet the Agency’s “hospital disinfectant” standard for post-registration testing. Successful post-registration testing for tuberculocidal disinfectants is demonstrated against an additional pathogen, Mycobacterium bovis BCG.

The Antimicrobial Testing Program (ATP) is the program the Agency uses to conduct post-registration testing of public health antimicrobial products (e.g., hospital disinfectants, tuberculocides) to ensure that marketed products are effective against target microorganisms when used according to their label directions. Most products on the list were collected by state inspectors during routine site inspections. The list also includes those products that have been recently submitted to the Agency for testing in response to a December 19, 2008 request. However, results are not yet available for these products. The list will be updated periodically.

Below is a list of hospital disinfectants and tuberculocidal products that have been tested by the Agency or its state contract laboratories. The listing of these products is not a government endorsement of any particular product or any particular type of product, but is merely a listing of products that have been tested to date. Some marketed hospital disinfectant products have not yet been tested as part of the ATP. Therefore, the list does not include all EPA registered hospital disinfectants or tuberculocides.

Definitions:

- Claims Tested: Hospital Disinfectant (HD) and or Tuberculocide (TB).
- Claims in Compliance: Label claim is in compliance with EPA standards. NA indicates claim confirmation not applicable.
- Product Voluntarily Canceled: Product was voluntarily canceled by the registrant.
- Claim Removed: Pathogen claim removed from product labeling.
- Under Agency Review: Products tested, Agency action pending.

- Voluntarily Submitted to EPA for Testing: By letter dated December 19, 2008, EPA requested that approximately 350 antimicrobial pesticide products be voluntarily submitted to the Agency for efficacy testing. This category lists those products that have been received in response to the Agency’s letter for testing.
- RTC: Retest claim due to issues with initial testing.
