

DISCLAIMER

The examples included in these presentations are intended for discussion purposes only. Throughout these presentations, the terms “state” or “states” are used to refer to all types of primacy agencies including States, U.S. territories, and Indian tribes and may also include situations in which EPA itself is the primacy authority. The statutory provisions and EPA regulations described in this document contain legally binding requirements. These presentations do not change or substitute for those provisions or regulations, nor are they regulations themselves. Thus, nothing in these presentations imposes legally binding requirements on EPA, states, or public water systems. Similarly these presentations do not confer legal rights or impose legal obligations upon any member of the public. While EPA has made every effort to ensure the accuracy of the discussion in these presentations, the obligations of the regulated community are determined by statutes, regulations, or other legally binding requirements. In the event of a conflict between the discussion in these presentations and any statute or regulation, these presentations would not be controlling. The presentations and publications listed herein from entities other than EPA (e.g., States and Universities) reflect the view of the entity in question and do not necessarily reflect the view of the EPA.
