Subject Breaking News: Bin Laden blasts U.S. for climate change

News Alert: Bin Laden blasts U.S. for climate change
06:49 AM EST Friday, January 29, 2010

Al-Qaeda leader Osama bin Laden has called in a new audiotape for the world to boycott American goods and the U.S. dollar, blaming the United States and other industrialized countries for global warming. In the tape, aired in part on Al-Jazeera television Friday, bin Laden warns of the dangers of climate change and says that the way to stop it is to bring "the wheels of the American economy" to a halt

Subject Breaking News: Four missing miners are found dead

News Alert: Four missing miners are found dead
12:43 AM EDT Saturday, April 10, 2010

Rescuers have found the bodies of four miners missing since Monday, officials said, pushing the death toll in the disaster at West Virginia's Upper Big Branch coal mine to 29. Authorities had said it was unlikely the miners would be found alive. Even so, rescuers had held out hope that the men might have survived in an inflatable refuge chamber deep inside the mine. The incident is the nation's worst coal mining disaster since 1970.

climate plan

News Alert

06:52 AM EST Friday, December 11, 2009

Key Copenhagen group releases draft climate plan

In one of the most significant developments to date at the U.N.-sponsored climate talks, the ad-hoc group charged with charting a new path forward released a draft text Friday morning outlining critical questions that need to be resolved before the talks end Dec. 18. The new document establishes the parameters for what industrialized and major developing countries would do to address climate change, and it outlines how richer nations could finance climate actions by poorer ones.

Breaking News Alert: U.S.-Pakistan security ties sink to new low, officials say
June 15, 2011 11:15:07 PM

The security relationship between the United States and Pakistan has sunk to its lowest level since the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks, endangering counterterrorism programs that depend on the partnership, according to U.S. and Pakistani officials. Both sides say further deterioration is likely as Pakistan's military leadership comes under enormous pressure from within its ranks to reduce ties with the United States. Army chief Gen. Ashfaq Kayani, a supporter of bilateral cooperation, "is fighting to survive," according to one U.S. official.

Subject Breaking News: U.S. will contribute to a $100B fund to help developing countries cope with climate change

News Alert

06:05 AM EDT Thursday, December 17, 2009

U.S. will contribute to a $100B fund to help developing countries cope with climate change

COPENHAGEN -- Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said Thursday that the United States would contribute to a $100 billion fund to help developing countries cope with climate change. Japan and the European Union have already committed to building such a fund by 2020, and it is considered a critical step in forging a global climate change pact in the U.N.-sponsored talks that conclude Friday. Clinton said U.S. contributions to the fund would be contingent on reaching a substantive political accord that would include "transparency" in tracking emissions cuts by major developing countries.

The Post asked experts who the winners and losers on the national stage are following of the 2009 off-year elections. Below are comments from Ed Rogers, Douglas E. Schoen, Tony Fratto, Karen Finney and Larry J. Sabato.

9) Unhelpful atmosphere

THE SENATE Environment and Public Works Committee began its markup of a massive climate change bill on Tuesday -- without its Republican members. The Republicans have some reasonable concerns about the legislation. But their boycott isn't helpful.

10) A world of change in 287 days

Sometimes I wish he'd be tougher. But he's a president, not a Hollywood action hero.

1) On Election Day, a win for government

Apparently some voters think government is necessary -- and good.

2) Why won't Obama give you a job?

To hear President Obama tell it, he's been busy creating jobs since taking office. The $787 billion stimulus package, he said last week, "save or create 3.5 million jobs." The White House is touting reports from recipients of stimulus funds asserting that they have created or saved 640,000...

3) The next economic bubble?

There's a thin line between promoting recovery and a crash.

4) A high price for health reform

The House bill would move us toward universal coverage -- and bankruptcy.

5) After the wall fell

Too many of the commemorations treat the past two decades as a foregone conclusion.

6) The rise of the right

The bottom line on last week's elections: The Republicans did well.

7) Health-care reform, GOP-style

COMPARING THE House Republican and Democratic health-care bills is like comparing a mouse to an elephant. The two measures are so different in ambition and therefore in size: The newly released GOP bill is deliberately modest and has an accordingly modest impact.

8) The myth of '08, demolished

Why Obama's 2008 sweep was a historical anomaly.

9) Locked away forever

JOE HARRIS Sullivan was 13 when he was accused of raping a 72-year-old Florida woman. Later convicted, Mr. Sullivan was sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole.

10) Bad climate for global worriers

Intelligent people agree that, absent immediate radical action regarding global warming, the human race is sunk. That is a tautology. Those who do not agree are, definitionally, unintelligent. Britain's intelligent prime minister, Gordon Brown, gives scary precision to the phrase "immediate."...

5) Deep freeze

STRUGGLING to balance their budgets, many local governments in Maryland have frozen salaries for county employees and teachers through unpaid furloughs, eliminated unfilled jobs and fired workers. The state government's workforce has fared no better. The same is true for Montgomery County.

6) A carbon target for Copenhagen

CLIMATE CHANGE was at the top of President Obama's agenda in China Tuesday, just three weeks before representatives from 190 countries meet in Copenhagen for a much-anticipated international climate conference. And he came tantalizingly close to saying what the rest of the world has been waiting for.

7) The HIV travel ban

THE UNITED STATES is a leader in the global fight against HIV/AIDS. Hundreds of millions of dollars have been spent to assist those with the disease and to help the uninfected stay that way. But since 1987, there has been a blot on that leadership. While the United States was urging an end...

Up-and-Comers Who Are Breaking Down a Digital Divide

Around town, I often hear people referring to a tech start-up as just "two guys in a garage." But that phrase excludes a gender that, some say, is too often overlooked in the technology industry. In Washington, a number of women are leaving their mark as entrepreneurs, social media enthusiasts an...

Democrats Are Jarred by Drop In Fundraising

Democratic political committees have seen a decline in their fundraising fortunes this year, a result of complacency among their rank-and-file donors and a de facto boycott by many of their wealthiest givers, who have been put off by the party's harsh rhetoric about big business.

8) The non-stars come out to play

OAKLAND, CALIF. The Redskins should be awful. But they aren't. They should have quit by now, but, for the fifth straight week, they haven't. The more players they lose, including five who have been all-pros, the better rookies like Brian Orakpo (four sacks) and second-year players like Fred Davis...

9) Climate talks stall over requirements for rich nations

COPENHAGEN -- Global climate talks ground to a halt Monday morning when a large bloc of developing countries complained that rich nations are abandoning the pact that has governed climate policy for more than a decade, though work continued behind the scenes on a new agreement.

10) Finally, Redskins have a hit

OAKLAND, CALIF. -- On a dreary day with their disappointing season winding down, the Washington Redskins continued to play hard to win, and, in a welcome change for them, finished well.

5) Why one-size job relief doesn't fit all

Why a one-size fits all job relief program won't work for America.

6) A 'cure' for character

America's therapeutic culture has some failings of its own.

7) To win the cyber-war, look to the Cold War

How can we win the cyber-war?

8) A natural choice

IN AMERICA'S climate debate, one of the most promising developments of recent months has been the growing recognition in Washington that natural gas may play a key role in curbing carbon emissions. The resurgence of gas comes through the discovery of massive de Appalachian shale formations...

9) Politicians, pretending as they go

There is a make-believe quality to modern American politics.

10) The right count

Why the Census Bureau is courting conservatives.

NO ONE outside the inner precincts of Iran's power structure knows who won that country's presidential election Friday. It's possible that a majority voted to reelect Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, as he claims. It's also possible, as much of his opposition fervently believes, that the election was stolen....
