

The Antimicrobial Testing Program
Hospital Disinfectant and Tuberculocidal Products Tested or Pending Testing
 December 2, 2017

The Environmental Protection Agency has completed testing of the majority of registered hospital disinfectants and tuberculocidal products. The following list of products can assist users in making informed choices regarding infection control in their facilities. The listing of these products is not a government endorsement of any particular product or any particular type of product, but is merely a listing of hospital disinfectant products.

EPA implemented the Antimicrobial Testing Program (ATP) to ensure that EPA-approved hospital disinfectants, sterilants and tuberculocidal products in the marketplace would continue to meet stringent efficacy standards. Currently, as of November 1, 2017, the ATP is suspended with regard to active product sample collection and routine testing by the Agency’s microbiology laboratory. EPA will continue to review product specific disinfectant and tuberculocidal efficacy data and update the product status on the list below. Read more about the Antimicrobial Testing Program.

This list consists of the following groups:

Agency Confirmed Efficacy - Includes products that have passed ATP testing by the agency’s lab and are confirmed as efficacious hospital disinfectants.

Agency Taking Action - Includes products under EPA deliberation, including undergoing testing or review, or taking regulatory or enforcement action.

No Post-Market Testing by EPA– Now Includes products labeled for use in dialysis facilities, newly registered products that have not yet undergone post-market testing and registered products that were not in production at time of collection.
