- Members must attend and participate fully in meetings.
- Meetings must be open to the public, except as specified by the EPA Administrator.
- All meetings must be announced in the Federal Register.
- Public participation must be allowed at all public meetings.
- The public must be provided access to materials distributed during the meeting.
- Meeting minutes must be kept and made available to the public.
- A designated federal official (DFO) must be present at all meetings.
- The advisory committee must provide independent judgment that is not influenced by special interest groups.

EPA's Office of Environmental Justice (OEJ) maintains summary reports of all NEJAC meetings, which are available on the NEJAC web site at <https://www.epa.gov/environmentaljustice/national-environmental-justice-advisory-council-meetings>. VIRTUAL PUBLIC MEETING

MEETING SUMMARY

The National Environmental Justice Advisory Council convened via Zoom meeting on Thursday, May 6, 2021. This summary covers NEJAC members' deliberations during the meeting and the discussions during the public comment period.

INTRODUCTIONS & OPENING REMARKS

Ms. Karen Martin, Designated Federal Officer (DFO), U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), introduced herself and delivered announcements to begin the meeting. She turned it over to Mr. Matthew Tejada, Director, U.S. EPA Office of Environmental Justice, for opening remarks.

Mr. Matthew Tejada, Director, U.S. EPA Office of Environmental Justice, welcomed everyone. He expressed his excitement to have another NEJAC meeting with the work that is happening at EPA and around the government on environmental justice with the need for the NEJAC to be a vibrant participant. He also expressed his excitement to welcome the new Deputy Administrator at the EPA, Janet McCabe. He shared a brief history of Ms. McCabe, stating that she's been at the EPA before and asked her to make opening remarks.

Deputy Administrator Janet McCabe, U.S. EPA, stated that she was thrilled to join in on the meeting, early on in her appointment, and hoped that there would be lots more opportunities. She thanked the NEJAC for always welcoming the Administrator and Deputy Administrator to the meetings and for being willing to serve on the Council. She stated that EPA needs to hear the voice of NEJAC. She stated that their input and advice is needed and that this is a service being provided at no small personal cost, so the EPA is grateful for their time and very thoughtful service.

Deputy Administrator McCabe stated that it's truly an honor to be back at EPA and to be able to serve with the Administrator, the senior leadership team and the incredible career staff who have made environmental justice their life's work at the EPA. She stated that she was also excited to have another chance to work with the NEJAC members and was looking forward to meeting new advocates from the environmental justice community. She stated that the whole administration and Administrator Regan himself have made absolutely clear that environmental justice is and will be a central and thriving principle in the work that is done to implement the nation's laws to protect human health and the environment. She remarked that she shared the Administrator's focus on this issue and his appreciation for the work that has been carried forward over the years. She noted that whether confronting climate change to safeguarding drinking water to revitalizing contaminated sites, environmental justice considerations absolutely have to play a chief role in the decision making.

Deputy Administrator McCabe noted that the NEJAC would be forming workgroups to provide the Agency with recommendations on incredibly important issues: farmworker and pesticides concerns, PFAS, water infrastructure and air quality. She stated that all of these are important issues, but they're especially important to communities that bear more than their fair share of pollution. She stated that the voices and advice provided by the NEJAC is critical to ensuring that all of the communities across the country are empowered. She stated that just having a seat at the table isn't enough, and that as the work is done to fulfil the mission to protect human health and the environment, the message of the voices of the NEJAC and the realities of overburdened communities needs to be a central considerations in deciding policies, allocating resources, and prioritizing actions. She stated that over NEJAC's 27-year history, over 60 formal reports and almost 1,000 recommendations have been provided. She stated that this is an incredible body of contribution. She noted that the NEJAC's advice has influenced every program area that EPA manages and certainly had a personal impact on her decisions when at the Air Office.

Deputy Administrator McCabe stated that she is looking forward to hearing from the NEJAC today as well as reading the superfund taskforce report being finalized today as well as the other recommendations that will be provided in the future. She stated that it was an honor to join the NEJAC for the early part of the meeting and she turned the floor back over to Mr. Tejada to continue with the agenda.

Mr. Matthew Tejada, Director, thanked Deputy Administrator McCabe and handed it over to Sylvia Orduño for introductions.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, thanked Mr. Tejada and Deputy Administrator McCabe, stating that the NEJAC is honored to have them there. She stated that the NEJAC is pleased at the welcoming and support that has been received for the work the NEJAC has been doing over the years and in this new administration. She stated that it is an exciting time for the NEJAC members to work alongside the EPA to do the important work that's been necessary for so many years. She stated that the engagement is really important, and the work is taken seriously along with the public comments which is one of the highlights of every meeting.

Ms. Orduño stated that the stakeholder groups are one of the strongest aspects of the Council because they really represent a variety of stakeholder groups from different regions across the country and different types of communities. She explained that she is a community organizer with Michigan Welfare Rights Organization in Detroit. She stated that when she came onto the Council, she mentioned that she didn't come from a traditional environmental justice organization. She explained that the work that she does comes from working with low-income impacted communities. She stated that this is along the lines of the needs where environmental justice is taking place, but also really paying attention to how it is that low-income people are impacted and don't always have the voice to explain how the problems they're dealing with are tied to environmental justice.

She stated that she was proud and happy to be able to work alongside two amazing co-chairs on the Council. She asked the co-chairs, Mr. Michael Tilchin, and Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, to introduce themselves before moving on to the rest of the Council introductions. The co-chairs as well as each member did a brief introduction.

Ms. Orduño thanked the members for the round of introductions. She stated that the NEJAC was passionate about the environmental justice work they will provide to the EPA over the next few months to years. She stated that they were also excited about what was heard from the Administrator at last month's meeting and also what was shared today by Deputy Administrator McCabe. She invited Deputy Administrator McCabe to close out the segment with any final thoughts.

Deputy Administrator Janet McCabe thanked everyone and stated that she was looking forward to getting to know everyone and working with the amazing expertise and experience around the virtual table.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, turned it over to Karen Martin to move to the next segment.

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, introduced the first agenda item. She stated that there was a quorum for the meeting to begin the discussion and deliberation period. She turned it over to Mike Tilchin to lead the Superfund Taskforce Report discussion.

NEJAC SUPERFUND TASKFORCE WORKGROUP REPORT DISCUSSION

Mr. Michael Tilchin, NEJAC Vice Chair, explained that the committee did a medium dive on the report at the March meeting. He stated that they have received excellent feedback and he would summarize the input and the outcome from the comments received, give an update on the status of the report, and present a motion to approve the report. He noted, however, that this was not an intent to constrain the Council from giving additional comments today.

Mr. Tilchin stated that there were seven strategies and recommendations. He noted that under each of those strategies there was a total of 36 recommendations, 33 expected outcomes, seven case studies, and eight additional issues of concern and areas of opportunity. He pointed out an addition since March was a revision made to the title of the report. He stated that based on the feedback, additional information was added to clarify that within a community there are a diversity of interests and priorities. He noted that the two case studies that were not completed were now completed. He noted that a discussion was added regarding who was responsible for cleaning up sites, EPA or the contaminating party, which might have an impact on how strategies and recommendations are implemented.

Mr. Tilchin stated that an additional topic was added under Additional Issues of Concern and Areas of Opportunity, specifically on the issue of enforcement. He explained that several reviewers commented that the section needed more attention. He then opened up the floor for dialogue on the report and asked for additional comments before moving to approve the report.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, Thanked Mike Tilchin, Tai Lung and Kelly Wright for the excellent work done over the years on the report. She stated that it's been a long process. She posed the question that since the work happened largely through the last administration, if there were any shift in priorities or new opportunities with the new administration.

Mr. Mike Tilchin, NEJAC Vice-Chair, noted that there were changes recognized and the report was reviewed, and boundaries of the field had expanded. He stated that the workgroup felt they were where they needed to be with strategies and recommendations, but they did strengthen them, sharpened them, and expanded them.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair invited any other Council members to make comments as it relates to their communities or thoughts on the overall report. Hearing no response, she turned the floor to Richard Moore.

Mr. Richard Moore, NEJAC Member, commended the workgroup on doing a tremendous job on the report and including the additional comments that were made by Council members and public commenters. He noted that the NEJAC Council was moving forward concerning enforcement and looking at an integration of enforcement in the Superfund report as well as the whole issue of systemic racism and how programs and groups have historically been impacted.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, stated that she sensed the Council was feeling satisfied with the workgroup and the deliverable product to the EPA Administrator. She stated that before moving forward with getting consensus from the Council, it seemed like there might be space for future work around Superfund.

Mr. Michael Tilchin, NEJAC Vice-Chair, stated that they are contemplating a kind of, colloquially, Superfund 2.0. He stated that the vision is, with the submission of the report, as the beginning with the intent to engage with EPA's leadership on the strategies and recommendations. He stated that the Council anticipates dialog will be initiated. He noted that the workgroup did not write an implementation manual, but as Carlton Waterhouse mentioned, in the previous meeting, there are things that can be adopted immediately that are simply common-sense good ideas. And there are other things that are more involved. He stated that the NEJAC would like to partner with EPA in adoption and implementation of as many of the strategies and recommendations as possible.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, stated that as the strong commitment to attend to environmental justice and climate justice across the country rises, there will grow the need to address more Superfund site issues. With that, Ms. Orduño asked the Council members for a show of their digital hand in support and to move for consensus in accepting the workgroup report and moving it forward to the Administrator. She noted that there was full consensus. She thanked the Council and turned it over to Karen Martin to discuss next steps for how the report would be submitted.

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, stated that over the next week, the report will go into a final format with a submittal letter and entered into the EPA system for correspondence where it will be sent up to the Administrator and a copy to the Office of Land and Emergency Management. She explained that the final report will also be publish to the webpage at the same time. She advised that she would send an email out to all the members with a copy of the transmittal letter. She turned it over to Melissa Collier to kick off the NEJAC 100 Days letter Discussion.

NEJAC 100 DAY LETTER DISCUSSION

Ms. Melissa McGee-Collier, NEJAC Member, began stating that the NEJAC has been in the process of preparing a letter to send to the EPA Administrator. She explained that the 100-days letter is actually a review of the majority of recommendations that have been made by NEJAC over the past four or five years. She stated that they went through the original draft and the recommendations and stated that those recommendations can be seen on EPA's NEJAC webpage. She explained that the committee went through the recommendations and highlighted, for the Administrator, what the issues were, and recommendations made by NEJAC to address those issues. She stated that the committee made a few changes and added different things to better enforce and push forward the NEJAC's concerns. She turned the floor to Aya Nagano to discuss the current status as well as moving forward.

Ms. Ayako Nagano, NEJAC Member, presented via the 100-day letter slide deck. She stated that dates were calculated based on the fact that the EPA Administrator was inaugurated on March 11, 2021, and the 100 days would be June 19, 2021. She stated that on May 12th, there would be a steering committee meeting where feedback from today would be discussed. She stated that on May 17th, the committee will be asked to submit a short issue statement as well as a list of recommendations that the Council will focus on in order to apprise the Administrator of the committee's purpose and plan.

Ms. Nagano stated that a draft will be sent to the steering committee on May 24th and then on June 4th to incorporate all the feedbacks into a final draft. She noted that on June 9th, the steering committee is going to review it again and on June 17th there will be another public meeting. She stated that the goal is to approve the 100-day letter on June 17th and submit it by June 19th.

Ms. Nagano stated that there is an outline that briefly introduces the NEJAC and summarizes the role, primary objectives, relationships to different administrations over time, hopes and concerns. She stated that the letter then goes into the nexus between NEJAC and WHEJAC and the vision of their partnership going forward. She stated that there will probably be a recommendation of a meeting between the chairs. She stated that the next section will be a response summarizing the recommendations submitted. She stated the part that is needed from each workgroup is the current NEJAC priority concerns and related recommendations. She noted that lastly, there will be closing comments.

Mr. Michael Tilchin, NEJAC Vice-Chair thanked Melissa Collier and Aya Nagano. He stated that the workgroup chairs, who may be seeing this for the first time, may wonder how this will be completed in time. He noted that there are eight topics and the expectation is a relatively brief statement of the issue and then a series of the high level, high priority recommendations to the Administrator related to that issue. He stated that once the workgroup has the first draft done, it will be shared among the others. He noted that Melissa Collier did a tremendous job of summarizing three years' worth of work spread out over 17 significant deliverables to the Administrator. He stated that the summary is a really critical addendum to the list of issues. He stated that the NEJAC is very specifically asking the Administrator and the EPA leadership team to reengage with the recommendation letters because there's a great deal of thought and work product in there to be aware of.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, thanked Mike Tilchin, Melissa Collier, and Aya Nagano. She stated that it was not until the last meeting that some of the work groups were formally established. She noted that there are a few more proposals for today. She stated that what will be put forward as the best effort to start getting movement on the work, the issues, and raising the issues in the conversations between the work groups to provide some additional updates, including what's heard in public comments. She stated that the Council really does take seriously the information from members of the public and EJ communities across the country. She stated that as issues arise, or issues that are needing to move up higher in terms of what is learned, will be a part of what gets incorporated. She stated that this is a continually evolving process. She invited the workgroup leads to share and/or comment on the reality of the timeline.

Dr. April Baptiste, NEJAC Member/Work group Chair, posed the question in terms of what the expected accomplishments are once the letter is sent to the Administrator. She asked are there expectations of a response, for the Administrator to prioritize, or is the NEJAC looking for particular actions on the recommendations that will be made in the 100-day letter regarding the priorities for the next four years?

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair, stated that it's all of the above. She explained that the NEJAC is making an appeal about how working with EPA would look like moving forward. She stated that the NEJAC wants to make sure that there are closer ties in terms of EPA staff working and communicating with the workgroups on a regular basis outside of the NEJAC public meetings. She also stated that a critical piece to address/raise is the collaborative work that will and can happen between the WHEJAC and the NEJAC. She explained that it is signaling a tone such as, "Administrator, we hear you in terms of the priorities that are laid out, here are our priorities, let's figure out a way to work together, and let's be accountable to one another and communicate on a regular basis so that we can maximize the impact."

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, stated that steering committee didn't feel ready to bring forward a draft to the Council at this time. She stated that the right balance is needed between what is honest frustration and what's happened in the response, the rollbacks, and even the lack of what is believed a respectful, adequate response from EPA when reports or letters have been submitted. She noted that the NEJAC is aware that there are inconsistencies across administrations or even across EPA offices, even with career staff.

Ms. Orduño went on to say that the NEJAC is looking at making the most of the opportunity presented by the leadership, both the EPA and the White House. She stated that the idea is to say the NEJAC is bringing all of what can be addressed to the Council, really trying to uplift what's heard throughout the community and from public comments as well as through work in the regions. She stated that the NEJAC wants to make sure that effort put forth is given the attention that it deserves. She stated that the balance between the issues and the tone, and also an appreciation for what is being heard in the leadership in this administration, is part of the balance. She noted that there will be a draft soon and feedback will be critical.

Ms. Millie Piazza, NEJAC Member reminded the Council of the prior year, with the prior Administration, not being able to meet with Administrator Wheeler. She asked, will the NEJAC try to have the meetings with the current Administrator?

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, stated that those options remain on the table. She stated that earlier when the new administration started, Richard Moore, Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, Mike Tilchin, and Sylvia Orduño met with new leadership in the Office of Policy and that request was made. She noted that Administrator Regan has been in the office just shy of two months and that is something that will be raised. She stated that they would like the meeting to take place in person and due to COVID that is on the backburner presently. She stated that the EPA also would like to have an in person public meeting in the future, but this depends on what happens with COVID and how the Agency is able to move forward with meetings. She reiterated that the meeting is still on the table, and the Administrator expressed the willingness to spend more time with the Council. She advised that she would follow up on that and possibly schedule an interim virtual meeting after the letter is submitted.

Mr. Richard Moore, NEJAC Vice Chair, noted that the Administrator has made that affirmation to environmental and economic justice and there are programs and departments within the structure of the EPA that will need to begin to respond to the recommendations made by the NEJAC . He noted that a meeting has taken place with the Administrator in the past. He stated that pieces within that 100-day letter will drive the NEJAC into discussion, and interaction with those programs and department heads, because those issues will be sent over to those various different departments.

Mr. Moore noted in addition, things have been moving very fast, and there is a need to be cautious but persistent and consistent around the issues that communities are being impacted by. He noted an example is the intersection between the international program which is called something else within the structure of the EPA. He stated that there are intersections between some of the work that's being done that overlaps into these different programs. He noted that another one are issues that have been testified to during public comment by groups particularly on the Mexico/U.S. border.

Mr. Moore stated that another example would be native/indigenous issues. He also noted issues that have been testified upon regarding Puerto Rico, along with chemical security issues, risk management plan, water issues and the various issues that have been heard during public comments. Lastly, he noted the issues of resources, particularly resources going to environmental justice grassroots organizations and other entities and institutions. He stated that some of these issues will need to be packaged to see where it goes from there.

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, noted that the office Richard Moore is referring to is the Office of International and Tribal Affairs. She also mentioned scheduling and noted that the steering committee wanted to get the letter out very quickly, which is how the 100 days came about. However, the limiting factor is that in order to meet the 100 days, the letter would need to be finalized in a public meeting. She noted that the meeting on June 17th lined up with the finalization of the letter as the next meeting would not be until mid-August.

Mr. Michael Tilchin, NEJAC Vice Chair, stated that the steering committee has not had discussion in detail and noted that the scope of the letter presented is not the last word. And that those are things that have been noted to talk about, but not necessarily the only issues that should be in the letter. He agreed that the issues Richard Moore raised were very crucial. He noted that there would need to be content added to the letter regarding the issues, filling in what the Administrator needs to hear from NEJAC regarding those issues.

Dr. Sacoby Wilson, NEJAC Member, thanked Richard Moore for breaking down the issues in the report and noted public commenters who highlighted issues in Region 5 and Region 6. He stated that he wanted to also highlight Region 4 as another region that has a lot of concerns with reports from that regional leadership, and there is a need to build that into future meetings.

Dr. Wilson turned his discussion to focus particularly on the money and how the money is going to be used, and funding to community-based organizations. He also noted money coming down from academic institutions. He stated that he would like to see on the EPA side of Justice40, funding go to institutions that serve people of color. He stated that there is too much of this money going to institutions, PWIs, who research and study the problem without the structure to solve the problems. He noted for example an academic institution having a science clinic and not set up to do science clinics to serve the people with science. He noted there should not be funding to people who extract the science.

He stated that EPA has to fundamentally change how it funds academic institutions to do science that actually serves the people who are taxpayers. He stated that this means shifting dollars away from PWIs and shifting those dollars to HBCUs that are serving people of color and also capacity building to make sure the HBCU has the capacity to do the work. He stated that NEJAC has to make sure this issue is addressed and that the Administrator understands those problems. Additionally, he noted that with procurement and supply chains, how is EPA engaging in procurement and supply chain equity for those who are going to be receiving dollars as NEJAC moves forward with this administration?

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, advised that issues raised will be incorporated in the discussion after the public comments period as well as proposals for new workgroups. She stated that several NEJAC members have raised the issue of the need to follow the money with Council participation in how funding is delivered and used in communities. She asked, however, if the Council had anything to add regarding the letter itself before moving on to that discussion.

Ms. Jacqueline Shirley, NEJAC Member, stated that her preference would be to move forward with the letter according to the timeline. She noted that the letter will be received by a friendlier audience with this administration. She also posed the question of what is the NEJAC expecting? She suggested that perhaps the language in the letter be very specific as to what the NEJAC would like the administrator to do. She noted the projected goals should be categorized in the letter along with the goals for moving forward but alerting the administration of the older issues that should take priority as they have been ignored for the past four years.

Ms. Cemelli de Aztlan, NEJAC Member, acknowledged the mention of including indigenous people as well as the border and international relations. She questioned where one would go for those resources. She acknowledged the mention by Dr. Sacoby Wilson that many of those resources, institutions, or infrastructures do not exist. She expressed concern that there may not be any specific place that is addressing the border or international relations.

Ms. Aztlan referenced attending an EPA meeting recently regarding ports of entry, thinking that that would be an entry point to talk about the border and it was not. She stated that the focus was mainly waterway ports of entry. She stated for example Rio Grande is a trickle of water, but it did not fall into the confines of the discussion. She posed the question as to what is instituted, within the EPA, to address specifically border international issues, specifically the environmental repercussions of the now new NAFTA, the USMCA, which has not been seeing a lot of follow through in regard to the new regulations to uphold rights such as labor and environment.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, stated that these were important questions as to whether the Council would reference the previous work or figure out a way to add other important issues to the letter that might not necessarily fall within the scope of an existing group. She noted that there has been talk of border related issues for Puerto Rico, in particular around water. She stated that those issues have been incorporated within the water infrastructure group, and the updates are necessary. She explained the frustration from Council members on the lack of response to the charge brought before the Council in October of 2016.

Ms. Orduño stated that she was also wondering what would be provided by way of response from the Administrator and the Office of Water. She noted that there is a meeting scheduled to take place on water affordability, by the Office of Water, although there has been no response to NEJAC's charge. She stated the need for consistency from what's heard from the top as to how it plays out through the offices and from leadership within those spaces.

Ms. Orduño also advised to pay attention to where there is a breakdown or a lack of follow through, or where the rules or processes are being violated that are harming or impacting communities. She stated that there should be a recommendation on the use of that information and how to work with older issues to get responses.

Ms. Cemelli de Aztlan, NEJAC Member stated that there is a gap in addressing the border and addressing NAFTA or the international trade. She stated she was still exploring what to put in the letter as a charge.

Ms. Melisa McGee-Collier, NEJAC Member, stated that although the issues with the border wall and all the other comments are issues that need to be taken up with the EPA administration, all of those issues cannot go into one letter. She suggested that the NEJAC would need to send multiple letters and multiple reports. She stated that Council would need to start drafting up the issues discussed to create multiple letters in a timely fashion. She noted that the 100-day letter serves the purpose of reminding the Administrator that NEJAC has been working on issues talked about for years and would like to see those recommendations included as implementations plans for the new Administrator. She stated that the additional letters, with new issues, should bring up items that the Administrator has not heard of from NEJAC.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, thanked Melissa Collier for summarizing. She asked the members that have additional ideas to speak on how those ideas would be incorporated. She also asked if the Council was comfortable with the views presented by Melissa Collier.

Dr. Sacoby Wilson, NEJAC Member, agreed with putting out separate letters. He also noted that there should be a separate work group. He reported providing feedback at the FACA meeting regarding financing issues and noted that this is an important opportunity. He reminded the Council of his discussions on mapping money since he joined the NEJAC. He recalled a meeting in Biloxi, Mississippi where he introduced the idea of tracking the programmatic dollars to environmental justice issues. He noted the importance of having a separate workgroup in light of the national discussion around an economic screening tool.

Dr. Wilson agreed that the 100-day letter should include the work completed over the last three years or further. He noted that there are things that were not addressed under the Obama administration and there are reports from that timespan that can be leveraged. He stated that he would be happy to start working on a letter within the next week.

Mr. Richard Moore, NEJAC Member, stated that not all points flagged were intended to be included in this 100-day letter. He agreed with Melissa Collier and Dr. Sacoby Wilson's points. He shared that there has been reports that have been done by the NEJAC on Mexico/U.S. border issues and there was a work group for the Mexico/U.S. border issues. He also stated that there was a public participation document. He noted that some documents would need to be updated, but many of the issues are still as urgent or in some cases more urgent than they have been before.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, asked if there was a strong enough support of the border and the greater diaspora issue to warrant an additional work group. She asked that this be brought up later during the business meeting if this is the case. She stated that Melissa Collier, along with others, have been working on the draft and can look further into the work of NEJAC that can be used to support the issues noted.

Mr. Michael Tilchin, NEJAC Vice Chair, stated that these discussions do not mean that the scope of the 100-days letter is closed and cannot incorporate additional topics. He stated as well, the 100-days letter is not the last opportunity to communicate with the EPA Administrator and leadership on priorities. He explained there will be multiple letters and hopefully multiple meetings to convey priorities. He noted that the intention is to have multiple opportunities to constructively work with EPA to ensure that the critical issues impacting communities are addressed.

Ms. Jacqueline Shirley, NEJAC Member, commented on the concept of “following the money.” She stated that following the money and mapping the money is simplifying the issue to the core because following the money in the U.S., in the federal government, and in any government, is complex. She noted that the concept is critical and needs focus and work.

Ms. Hermila Trevino-Sauceda, NEJAC Member, agreed with the notion of sending the letter and also setting up a meeting. She stated that there should be sharing opportunities to give a heads up in terms of what’s working, what’s not, what hasn’t gotten attention.

Ms. Cemelli de Aztlan, NEJAC Member, expressed concern about the USMCA. She noted during negotiations, there was no acknowledgement of climate change or any remediation. She stated that a lot of things that occurred under the Trump administration would need to be undone. She noted it would be interesting to look at the U.S. border work group report and navigating from where things are now. She mentioned that it has been found that environmental injustice really affects women’s bodies and that there are children who have perished in the name of environmental injustice and this has not been addressed in depth in the discussions of Justice40. She credited Justice40 to the growth and the work of the Council but noted that there are still gaps to fill. She also suggested the NEJAC look into having a women’s working group.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, thanked the Council for their input and asked Dr. Osborne Jelks to close out the discussion.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair, advised that the NEJAC has the opportunity with the 100-day letter to set the tone in terms of expectations of a working relationship that is collaborative and ongoing with the different program offices at EPA. She stated that the opportunity is there to address all the issues of concern, even the ones that may not quite make it into the letter. She stated that those can be lifted up and new workgroups established if needed to press on and elevate those issues.

Ms. Rita Harris, NEJAC Member, expressed that it would be ideal to mention a lot of the issues in the 100-day letter although you could elaborate more with individual letters. She stated that she would like to see additional letters in the future in light of the numerous issues.

Ms. Ayako Nagano, NEJAC Member, ask for any member to let her know if they would like to assist in digging up past NEJAC recommendations.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, stated that is an important point of work to identify and it would be great to see what the trends have been and why is it that some issues have not been resolved despite the many years NEJAC has raised them. She stated that it would be interesting to learn what has been the responses and the problems with getting results. She closed out the session to resume with the Public Comment Period following the break.

ORAL PUBLIC COMMENT PERIOD

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, welcomed everyone back and opened up the Public Comment Period. She reminded the participants that only pre-registered public commenters will be speaking in the meeting today. She noted that written public comments will be accepted through May 20, 2021. She stated that all written comments will be shared with the NEJAC and will be a part of the meeting summary. She advised the commenters that they will have three minutes each to speak.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, advised the commenters that the NEJAC really appreciates the public comment part of the meeting and it is critical to continue to learn what is happening in other parts of the nation and territories and regions with EJ communities. She advised what really helps the committee is making clear what is identified as problem or a need and then also a particular recommendation or solution or ask. She stated that this helps to incorporate the issue into the work that the NEJAC is doing.

Ms. Brandi Crawford-Johnson, Public Commenter: Hi. My name is Brandi Crawford-Johnson. Hello to the NEJAC members. I just want to thank you all for all the work you're doing, and I understand how hard and difficult it is and being an EJ advocate. I'm very passionate about the work I'm doing to try to protect and help save lives in environmental justice communities like in Kalamazoo, Michigan where I lived for eight years and developed asthma myself.

I got an email yesterday from ATSDR and an email from Michigan Department of Health and Human Services saying that they are working to go over the data, gas studies that I sent them in October of last year and the toxicology report I had done with an EPA partner. They said they were very valuable, and they are -- EPA region 5 is also going to be putting some mobile air units down in Kalamazoo because those gases are trapped because the topography is a valley, and the area is an predominantly African-American community.

And the problem is that I want to trust that they are going to do things. I feel like there's so much talk and not enough action and there are people that are on life support for asthma attacks in this community. There are people that have died from asthma and COPD attacks in this community. I just don't understand why it's not taken seriously and not getting it done right away especially if you have a toxicologist or doctors or epidemiologists volunteering their time and advocates like myself doing everything I can to get this done. . I just feel like there's just more talk and not enough action and that's what I'm hoping in the future with all the new ideas and all the new measures that are going in place with the new administration.

I'm hoping that we will see a lot of action with Justice40 and that we will see a lot of action with these environmental justice communities. There are many in southwest Michigan, not just Kalamazoo. There's Benton Harbor, Michigan, Cass County, Van Buren County, St. Joseph County. And we need some more air monitors put in these cities that do not have them as well. Thank you for your time.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: I did have a question for Brandi Johnson and so it does sound like there is some responsiveness in terms of the air monitors that you mentioned but obviously there is a greater need than what is maybe currently in the plans to be installed. Is there anything in particular that you are asking from EPA in terms of action, any thoughts about the fact that there's a lot of talk? And we know that so well, those of us who come from communities that have a number of environmental justice challenges? But I want to be able to clearly identify if there is some specific action that you're asking for with respect to EPA in this matter.

Ms. Brandi Crawford-Johnson, Public Commenter: Yes, thank you for that question. I brought it to the EPA Region 5 environmental justice program in July of last year, and I've been told that they are going to be getting their mobile air unit down there since last summer. But there are a lot of other air monitors like Purple air monitors. I just got one in the mail that I'm going to be installing. I just don't understand, if people's health is at stake, it shouldn't be taken lightly, and it shouldn't be where it's not done. And if people are dying and you know that this is a community where the gases are trapped and 1500 babies die in one year because they have no developed lungs or you see tons of people, kids on life support. And you know that there's people speaking out. There are hundreds of air proponents. Why is it taking so long to get those air monitors and to say, yes, these chemicals are harmful?

I have gas studies saying these chemicals are harmful. I have a toxicologist that I hired to do a report that said that these people's health, employees and the residents, their health is at severe risk. So, I don't understand why it's taking so long for the EPA or Michigan Department of Human Health and Services or ATSDR to work together to at least announce to the public that there's a severe public health threat. I feel like it's a lot because of the Flint water crisis. That's why they changed their name from Michigan Department Community Health to Michigan Department Health and Community Services because they thought that would help make their image better. It should be about what they are doing to protect the health and environment of citizens.

I just feel like I've been working so hard to try to bring attention through the news and through toxicologist and trying to contact the EPA every week and ATSDR and Michigan's Department of Health and Human Services. What I really want is to have health monitoring down there. I want to have air monitoring consistent in the neighborhoods, on the streets where the people live, not at the plant. It shouldn't be done by people in the city of Kalamazoo

None of the resident's trust anybody that's known about what's going on there for so long. They've ignored all of our complaints, the doctors. They've ignored the epidemiologists, the toxicologist. They've ignored everyone. So, it's just like a trust level thing and I'm just hopeful that we'll get a response and that we'll have some action. But I feel like I'm going to have to keep fighting because I keep pressuring them and staying on them. I just feel like it's taking so long.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you so much for that clarification and thank you for everything that you're doing by raising these issues, getting toxicologist and epidemiologists involved and there's so much that you are doing and I want to lift that up but also just affirm that action does need to be taken. I have a few NEJAC members who wanted to respond. I have Dr. Sacoby Wilson, Dr. Ben Pauli, and then Melissa McGee-Collier.

Dr. Sacoby Wilson, NEJAC Member: Thank you. Thanks again, Brandi Johnson, for providing what's happening, updates on what's happening in Kalamazoo. I think what you're saying relates to the EPA response to these kinds of issues. EPA needs a more agile mobile response team to understand the exposure differentials and impacts. And this is getting at cumulative impacts in communities like Kalamazoo and working better with ATSDR and NIH, so you have a more responsive agile mobile response team that can-do surveillance on pollutants and also health monitoring.

What we're saying, and what I'm hearing from Brandi Johnson, is that OAR OAQPS in some ways and other units within the EPA also the region and the health agencies, they need to work better together to have a response team. Maybe we need to look at the CDC's surveillance system, the EIS Program, or something that could be more responsive to the needs where you have these differential burdens and chemical impacts. And it speaks to larger issues and this gets back to site reports, the air quality monitoring report we did a few years ago. They talked about transparency and data. As Brandi Johnson said we need hyperlocal site-specific monitoring done. We need data transparency from the industry. We need outside groups to do monitoring. We need a citizen science component in that.

So, I'll just try to close and say what we're hearing from community members and what Brandi Johnson said, as I said before in other sessions, the monitoring infrastructure is not capturing the needs of the communities. We have to have a total overhaul of how the EPA does monitoring and how it does that monitoring in partnerships with agencies like ATSDR, NIH to be more nimble, more agile to get at these issues that I'm hearing Brandi Johnson talk about making sure the right equipment is on hand, and they're addressing the needs of the communities and that's not happening. Thank you.

Dr. Ben Pauli, NEJAC Member: Thank you so much for your testimony, Brandi Johnson. I just wanted to say three quick things. Firstly, I just wanted to second everything Sacoby Wilson just said about the need for a more robust sampling that empowers communities rather than kind of foreseeing just sit around and wait for others to respond to their request for help. I wanted to offer myself as a potential contact and resource here. I do know somebody at the University of Michigan who may be able to help with providing air monitors. If you feel like this is something the community can take on if you have the right kind of equipment, I'd be happy to talk with you offline about that.

But then as far as EGLE is concerned, I was wondering if you have looped Regina Strong into any of your conversations. I hear what you're saying about the rebranding of the MDEQ, but there are people on staff there now whose job it is in theory to take exactly these sorts of things seriously and Regina Strong foremost among them. I was just wondering if you had brought her into the conversation at all. And again, I just wanted to maybe follow up with you offline about the air monitoring.

Ms. Brandi Crawford-Johnson, Public Commenter: I appreciate that. Yes, I have spoken to Regina Strong and Katie Kruse several times. I've had several Zoom meetings with them last year. I have not heard from them since. I think some other community members have reached out as well.

I just feel like there's just a lot of politics going on here, and there's just a lot of favoritism. I actually have a person that lives in the Kalamazoo community. I cannot say her name, but she works at EGLE. She told me that they wish that I would go away, that I would stop focusing on Kalamazoo air quality because of this graphic packaging expansion. I just want to say that I don't feel a lot of effort coming from that department. Maybe they need more environmental justice advocates like I suggested to her last summer. I said, why don't you have an environmental justice advocate for each county if you can't oversee the concerns that are going in each community. If you appoint some type of subcommittee for each county or something like that for EGLE, that will help. Because if you're overwhelmed with the Detroit area or whatever you're focused on, every area deserves to have the attention that they deserve concerning their health because that's really what matters in environmental justice is the health of the people.

That's why it's so sad and concerning for me to see that the health of the people has been ignored for so long. And, even with all these environmental justice initiatives coming out, I still believe that it's being ignored, or it's being knocked on social media or it's not really being taken seriously. Environmental justice has not even got a billboard up in Kalamazoo right now that says, clean up the sacrifice zones. People are not disposable. I want the City of Kalamazoo officials to realize how serious this is. If you would have listened to everyone a long time ago when we had hundreds of air complaints, I don't know if you would have expanded this paper mill because increasing 221 percent greenhouse emissions is crazy, right next to a front line community in the middle of a warmer climate crisis.

Regina Strong knows all this and so does Katie Kruse. They asked me not to file a civil rights complaint against them. I had a meeting with them about that, and they said, what would it take for you not to because they had another civil rights complaint filed against them for an incinerator in Detroit? And I said, you need to shut them down and have their equipment fixed. That's what it'll take. I haven't filed one against them, but I don't want to get to that point.

I want to work with agencies. I want to work with EGLE. I want to work with Michigan's Department of Health and Human Services. I'm trying to work with ATSDR. I'm trying with EPA Region 5. I don't want to have to use my lawyers. We have that class action lawsuit against Graphic Tech, still in process. I don't want to have to come at them in such an aggressive way. I just want them to try to work together to protect the people.

It's not that difficult to get some air monitors out there. Get some mobile health vans out there. There's a lot of people that don't have health insurance. Make sure they're getting checked for respiratory disease. If you have an epidemiologist and you have a toxicologist saying that everyone's having respiratory disease, it's because of this paper mill and this wastewater plant being located right inside the neighborhood. Then that's something that should be addressed right away.

It shouldn't just be completely ignored like this, and that's what we're seeing. We're seeing a lot of people ignoring the situation, and we believe it's because there's a $600 million expansion of this paper mill. There was $3 million of EGLE money going towards this paper mill that I said something to them about. I've reached out to everybody at EGLE.

This brownfield that Graphic Tech is standing on is contaminated brownfields that they contaminated. I have studies that were done in 2010 showing that there's contamination in the drinking water supply, that there's contamination in the soil in the millions of sulphur and arsenic. Some of them was done by Checker Motors, but a lot of it was by a Graphic Tech. They're expanding on a brownfield that they've already contaminated for decades. They've contaminated with PFAS/PFOA. They're contaminating with PCBs. This is a horrible paper mill that should not be expanding. That's why I'm saying they're just not listening. They're just not taking it seriously. And I don't know what else to do besides to keep talking to reporters and getting my lawyers and filing complaints. Because if you're not going to listen and if you're not going to do anything, then I will have to come at you aggressively through the law. Thank you.

Ms. Melissa McGee-Collier, NEJAC Member: Brandi Johnson, thank you for your comment, and I do agree with the comment that was made by Dr. Sacoby Wilson early as we started our discussion about the issue that you've raised. And it's not just in your area, not just in your state, but it's everywhere where I have seen as a state representative working for an environmental agency. I have seen communities request air monitoring be done in the community and that request being turned down because there was already an air monitor two or three miles away. Whereas the community is not concerned about what's happening two/three miles away, they want to know what's happening in their community. And so, I feel your pain and I understand it.

What I'm just going to add -- and I'll stop because I know we have some other commenters, but the guidance that the states go by which is what Dr. Sacoby Wilson Wilson was referring to earlier, those guidance documents and policies in place that states go by to determine where to put air monitors are actually being used unfortunately by some states to make excuses as to why they can't put extra monitors up in certain areas. Whether it's an excuse about attainment or non-attainment areas, what are you going to do with the monitoring once you get it, monitoring equipment is expensive, time consuming, what do you want to monitor for ozone or particulate matter? And so, these are the types of questions communities are bombarded with when they petition or when they ask for extra monitors.

My take on this issue goes back to what Dr. Sacoby Wilson brought up again, the NEJAC wrote recommendations about community air monitoring several years ago. And that's why it's so important for us to bring this issue back up in a letter and in conversations. Brandi Johnson, what I just want to say is that, you're not alone and I know that does not make you feel any better, but I think NEJAC can push the issue, especially now with this administration for community air monitoring to be done in an easier fashion and take away those excuses that states sometimes seem to use to deny a petition by the community to add an extra monitor. Thank you.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair: Brandi Johnson, I appreciate you coming back again, right, to keep talking about this issue because I think that it's important to keep getting it on the record. I know the new EJ coordinator that the governor appointed in Michigan when she came on board. I think what we find is that we have these challenges here at the federal level of the EPA, and we see them sometimes playing out with even more challenges at the state and local levels. I believe that it's important to be able to count on the regions to help with the coordinating the work that's needed to be done at the state and local levels, especially when you're not getting the response locally.

I believe that pressing on the EPA is one of those things that we have to do because we have to tie in that this is not just a Kalamazoo area problem, this also affects the health of other communities as well. Knowing how these issues play out both in land soil, air, and water, it matters to pay attention to them with the seriousness that they deserve. I think that what I see happening, because I'm in Detroit and work with a lot of those southwest Detroit folks as well, is that you get these conflicts in the state in terms of what is going to be done by way of economic development and job creation, and they end up working against what EJ communities say that they need. We get into a level of double speak.

The things that you know about which you might have to do to sort of force the issues oftentimes takes a legal challenge. It's frustrating to see communities figure out how to lawyer up, so that you can put these sort of injunctions or other kinds of halts to what is taking place so that you can have the public process you deserve, the monitoring that needs to be done, the environmental impact research and statements, or whatever else that needs to be done. There are a lot of shortcuts around economic development in the name of developing brown field sites or other kinds of deals that get cut and those promises of jobs that always sort of like hang over EJ communities.

I think that the issue you're raising is also tied into “walking the talk” with this current administration in terms of ensuring that EJ communities are going to be protected, that we're going to change the game, and we're not going to actually continue to put the community in harm's way, and we're going to address it in real ways.

To me one of those things is, how is it that we can work with Region 5 in particular and with EGLE and with local community representatives and residents to figure out how to draw these kinds of agreements. What does it mean to draw community benefits agreements so that there are things in writing that you can demand for the community to be able to have and benefit from? I'm definitely going to follow up with you as well, you and Dr. Ben Pauli to see what we can do, and I think that this can be like one of those examples of how we start testing what people are saying versus what they'll do. Why don't we actually see what it is that we can do in terms of follow up locally, with the state, and with the region, because a few of us here at the Council have a number of concerns with Region 5 in particular. Dr. Sacoby Wilson noted that earlier that we've got some issues in the regions that we've got to address in terms of how they're going to be responsive and kind of get out of the way in some instances from what communities need.

I look forward to following up with you and thank you again for coming to the Council with this information.

Ms. Lakendra Barajas, Public Commenter: Hello. My name's Lakendra Barajas, and I'm an associate attorney at Earthjustice. I'd like to thank the NEJAC for providing the opportunity to speak today. I'm here today to voice concerns about the implementation of the Toxic Substances Control Act, or TSCA and the effect this can have on chemically overburdened community.

TSCA requires EPA to protect communities overburdened by exposure to dangerous chemicals when evaluating chemical risk. Given the role of this body as an advisory council to EPA, I specifically ask this Council today to bolster protections for chemically overburdened communities in two key ways. First, this Council could issue a statement urging EPA to correctly implement TSCA and expressly define chemically overburdened communities as potentially exposed or susceptible subpopulations.

The risk evaluation process has three steps. Step one is prioritization where EPA chooses fractions of high priority chemicals. Step two is risk evaluation during which EPA comprehensively evaluates a chemicals exposures and risks and determines whether the chemical substance present or will present an unreasonable risk of injury. And the final step, risk management, requires EPA to impose restrictions to eliminate unreasonable risk.

TSCA also mandates that EPA determine whether a chemical presents an unreasonable risk to potentially exposed or susceptible subpopulations during the chemical risk evaluation process. Currently, EPA has failed to properly consider potentially exposed and susceptible subpopulations at each stage of the risk evaluation process. We're concerned this will continue at the risk management stage which ten chemicals are moving into now. For example, communities located in close proximity to petrochemical facilities in the Gulf Coast regions of Louisiana and Texas are burdened by high levels of exposure to the majority of the 20 toxic chemicals that EPA recently prioritized for risk evaluation under TSCA. These communities living near polluting facilities in this area are predominantly communities of color. And these communities were not considered in the scoping documents. The NEJAC could issue a statement urging EPA to adhere to the mandates within TSCA and consider communities like those in Texas and Louisiana as potentially exposed or susceptible subpopulations.

Second, we strongly urge NEJAC to meet regularly with EPA's Office of Chemical Safety and Pollution Prevention and to form an internal TSCA workgroup to ensure constant communication with EPA and provide opportunities for strategic implementation of environmental justice through all stages of the risk evaluation process. Thank you for your time.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you so much, Lakendra Barajas. Do we have NEJAC members who want to speak on this? I appreciate you raising this issue as someone who is not originally from but I grew up for a portion of my life in Baton Rouge, Louisiana within less than a mile from one of the petrochemical facilities that you just mentioned. So, this is something that's very near and dear to me. As I think about the health effects that I and my family experienced that we no longer experience once we moved away from that area.

For many folks, this is a case of life and death, so thank you for raising the critical issue of these chemically overburdened communities being really called out, elevated, that we're looking at these potentially exposed or susceptible subpopulations and working to make sure that their health and wellbeing is safeguarded and also your comments about really developing a special workgroup to address this issue in particular. So, thank you again for your advocacy on this.

Mr. Richard Moore, NEJAC Member: I just wanted to appreciate not only the comments but the recommendations that have been made to the Council. I think quickly, as people are aware in the TSCA negotiations, the environmental justice issues within those negotiations were taken out. So, for example, one of the things that were taken out was legacy communities, and the legacy communities were connected to the hotspots. Again, I'll leave it there for the sake of time. I appreciate your recommendations and comments and hope that the Council will take that up in the business section. Thank you.

Ms. Jacqueline Shirley, NEJAC Member: My comment and question goes back to both commenter one and two, and it seems like both comments and both issues were raising about how other agencies should be involved with both of these issues. I know that the federal government has an interagency environmental justice council, and I was wondering, are those people on this call? Are they hearing these issues? Because it seems like as NEJAC, maybe we can try to elevate the interagency collaboration and ensure that other agencies are also hearing these issues. We send out specific invitations to these interagency work groups on environmental issues and other agencies because they intersect with human health, mental health, other crises that happen with communities that other agencies can be involved in.

Sometimes when we see an environmental issue, it's not just an environmental issue; it is a public health issue. It is a mental health issue. It is a crises issue. It is a life and death issue. So, I'm hoping that there are other agencies on this call listening and writing down notes, hearing our public and our nation's citizens coming forward to the NEJAC. Thank you to the persons who came to comment to us. We really appreciate you. Thank you.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you and point well taken, Jacqueline Shirley, and I think Dr. Sacoby Wilson talks about cumulative risk and impacts a lot. These issues are multifaceted, and they intersect and overlap, definitely engaging, making sure that from the perspective of the federal government that other agencies that are a part of the interagency workgroup, making sure that they are aware and are acting on these issues is really important as well. So, thank you for that.

Dr. David Dow, Public Commenter: I am Dr. David Dow, a retired marine scientist and grassroots environmental activist living in Cape Cod, Massachusetts. I have been engaged in this Safe Drinking Water Act Superfund cleanup at Joint Base Cape Cod since the late 1980s. Ashumet Valley plume from Joint Base Cape Cod runs underneath the Yearling Meadows development where I live. This plume has contaminated public and private drinking water wells in Falmouth and Mashpee with PFOS and PFOA at levels exceeding 70 parts per trillion which is EPA's hazard level. Mass DP recently release a maximum contaminate level of 20 parts per trillion for the sum of 6 PFAS chemicals, and this standard has been added to the contaminants of concern at Joint Base Cape Cod.

My environmental justice concern is contamination of the finfish and shellfish in Ashumet Pond and Rockaway Bay by PFAS chemicals which could pose a health threat to sensitive populations. These would include women of childbearing age and kids, recreational fisherman, and women who consume the catch that they catch, and the Mashpee/Wampanoag Tribe which does hunting and fishing in this area.

Ashumet Pond water and sediments are contaminated with PFAS chemicals and it's quite likely that the fish and shellfish have higher levels of PFAS. In addition, Ashumet Pond has problems with methylmercury contamination of finfish and summer cyanobacterial blooms, toxins which accumulate in shellfish. I would like to see EPA Region 1 work with Mass DP and Massachusetts Fish and Game departments to monitor PFAS chemicals in finfish and shellfish in Ashumet Pond and Rockaway Bay and develop food consumption alerts if the levels are high like I suspect. I would thank you for letting me make these comments and if you have any questions, I'd be glad to entertain them.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you so much, Dr. David Dow, for raising this really critical issue and it's an issue in terms of PFAS contamination that we have heard even for the short time that I've been a part of the NEJAC. This issue comes up over and over. So, it's definitely an issue that deserves to be addressed for the number of communities across this country that are dealing with PFAS issues.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair: Thank you, Dr. Na'Taki Jelks and Dr. David Dow, for this information. One of the things we have been really paying close attention to in Michigan is following a lot of the work of the environmental work group that have been checking this data nationally. We have all come to learn, this is not just a problem in certain communities; it's a problem in all communities. We just haven't really had enough testing at the state level to really be able to document it.

One of the things that I think that is troubling is as you're saying that if there is at least known or acknowledged higher levels of PFOS/PFAS in any kind of surface water or ground water regions that there should be some type of public notification. We saw that in Michigan where there were signs posted by the state environmental quality organization that posted, do not eat fish out of this drinking water or surface water source. Do not eat deer that are in this area because they have been tested and determined that they had high levels that were not safe for human consumption. Has there been any posting at all? Is there a matter of that there has not been enough follow through from the state agencies that are responsible for this monitoring or is there a problem with public notification that needs to be done but hasn't been done? Can you maybe talk a little bit more about that?

Dr. David Dow, Public Commenter: There's been no monitoring of PFAS levels in finfish or shellfish in Massachusetts, either by the state, EPA Region 1 or the Air Force Center for Civil Engineering, which are responsible for the cleanup at Joint Base Cape Cod. And the reason they haven't monitored was that there's no state standard for PFAS levels in food, whether it be seafood or agricultural projects. So even though we have a lot of measurements of PFAS in drinking water and groundwater, there's no measurements of food. And as a consequence, it's unknown what the dangers are, so there's no posting.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair: Thank you for that. And so, we do have a work group that wrote a couple of letters in the last administration that is part of the follow up and part of that conversation that we had with the 100-day letter to the Administrator. I'm part of that work group, so what I will do is at minimum follow up on the issues around what it is that was stated that would be done in the last administration around notifications, seeing what we can learn and what maybe taking place with the current administration around this. That will be part certainly of our follow up with the PFAS/PFOS work.

Ms. Ayako Nagano, NEJAC Member: This is a little bit of an aside, but the EPA just came out with an app and there's a couple of hearings. The app is to improve and to help communities identify potential sources of pollution to recreation waters. The science-based and data-informed tool empowers communities and supports engagements in local decision in protecting the health of the swimmers and recreators. And there's three events coming up, so I'll just put the links for registration in. I'm not sure if they're going to cover your area, but it's related. The EPA just published this. It is EPA's new sanitary survey app for marine and freshwaters.

Dr. David Dow, Public Commenter: I just thought I'd mention that when I worked at the fishing lab, I was the recreational fishery coordinator northeast, and saltwater anglers are very concerned about PCP and methylmercury.

Dr. Sacoby Wilson, NEJAC Member: I just want to remind NEJAC about the PFAS intercommunication with the National Academy of Sciences, and they have the emergent sign work group. I think it's probably an opportunity for us to push them to look at some of these, doing a survey of areas that have these PFAS issues and making sure that there's some consideration of getting that community input to inform that whole reporting process.

And on the drinking water issue, particular those who are on well water, this is a very important issue to get at when it comes to gaps in the Safe Drinking Water Act. Unless I'm incorrect about this, isn't the Drinking Water Act in most states does not govern any state. It does not cover private wells, right? So, if we have this big concern with PFAS and we have so many people who are still on private wells, that's a vulnerability issue just in general if you're in any type of industrial sources or agriculture sources when you're on well water. Well, that needs to be elevated when it comes to the EPA, so I think we want to get some report back from our water team in EPA about what they're doing to look at those issues.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you, Dr. Sacoby Wilson. Would anybody else on the Council like to respond? Well, seeing none, again, thank you, Dr. David Dow, for raising this issue and bringing this to the NEJAC today.

Mr. Richard Reibstein, Public Commenter: I'd like to say that I'm making this statement today on behalf of myself and Jamie Banks (phonetic) who is the executive director of Quiet Communities and I'm the chair of the legal advisory board.

Very simply, we just would like noise to be put on the agenda. People think of noise as something annoying, but noise is actually a significant health and environmental issue. A national study of road and air traffic noise found that neighborhoods with high concentrations with minority and low-income residents are exposed to higher levels of noise. We've seen these results in study after study. EJ areas populations are disproportionately affected by noise, and noise is not simply an annoyance. It's estimated that about a hundred million Americans right now are at some serious risk from environmental noise where we have not just hearing loss, problems like tinnitus, but also nonauditory problems. Chronic noise can cause annoyance as we all know, but it can also cause sleep disruption and stress that contributes to cardiovascular disease, metabolic disturbances, mental disorders, and mortality. Noise interferes with cognition and learning, so children are quite vulnerable.

Now, of particular interest to this Committee because you are an advisory body to EPA is the fact that EPA once had a noise control program. It had it in the very beginning of its founding, but, during the Reagan era, Congress and the administration defunded it. So, we had begun to set standards. We had begun all sorts of coordinating efforts, and then they were stopped. So, we think this should be revived, and we think that it should be a concern of NEJAC, not just noises in general, but in particular that NEJAC add its voice to the request for EPA to reinstate its noise program. And that's something that should be articulated to both EPA and to Congress and anyone else who's interested.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you so much, Richard Reibstein, for raising this issue and also for educating perhaps some of us in terms of the history of this program or office at EPA that used to address noise issues as a critical issue that it is. You mentioned the fact that a lot of community of color and low-income communities might be living in areas or do live in areas where there are significant challenges with noise pollution. The other challenge is that in so many instances, noise is not the only thing that those communities are facing. But definitely, it's something that is often overlooked even when we talk about cumulative risk and impacts and definitely something that needs to be put on the agenda because we've got to understand and explore what the risks are, the health risk that are associated with, especially consistent and repeat exposure to noise and noise pollution. It's a really critical issue. Dr. Sacoby Wilson would like to respond.

Dr. Sacoby Wilson, NEJAC Member: I was just going to follow up to the point you just made. Thank you, Richard Reibstein, for that talk about noise. We've talked about the cumulative impacts. It has impacts of chemical and nonchemical stress is right. The lives we talk about in environmental injustice and environmental hazards, we're talking about exposure to chemical agents that can cause cancer, reproductive effects, mutagens. It can impact neurological development.

So, when we think about nonchemical stresses, which we are talking about, you have light pollution and noise pollution. So, these physical stressors are really important, and we need to do more as Richard Reibstein mentioned. There are a number of studies that talk about noise and how it contributes to obesity and studies that look at cortisol levels we're approaching.

Again, Richard Reibstein mentioned oxidative stress. So, all these things contributing to weathering and how stuff gets on your skin. So, if you're already being impacted by chemical stressors and you've been impacted by psycho/social stressors like racism and poverty and then you get impacted by noise, how are we addressing the cumulative impact of all those stressors? Communities of color live near rail lines, for example, fossil fuels by a drain. Communities of color, other communities, and rural communities are dealing with well pads. Those in cancer alley have been with petro operation refineries. Communities are dealing with compressor stations. I mean, there's a lot of noise out there that adds additional stress and stressors in community with EJ issues.

I think this is the opportunity again as someone said, another fellow NEJAC member said, interagency workgroup. We've got to bring in NIOSH. We also need to talk about OSHA. There's some citizen science work out there in monitoring noise. But we should look at, just in the way we want to increase access to green zones, like positive exposures, we need to address these issues of quiet zones, particularly in areas that have a lot of heavy industry.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you for that, Dr. Sacoby Wilson. That also makes me think about even in the City of Atlanta where I live communities in southeast Atlanta have complained for a number of years about government entities actually running all sorts of drills with vehicles and stuff outside of their homes early on Saturday mornings and the stress that has come to those communities as a result of that. So, it's definitely an issue that we cannot afford to overlook.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair: Thank you, Dr. Na'Taki Jelks, Richard, Dr. Sacoby Wilson. So, it's making me think a lot of these projects are happening around infrastructure, we've become sort of familiar with seeing when highways are being redone. They're putting up those sound barriers alongside different kinds of communities, and some communities have better barriers than others. And in part, we know it's also supposed to reduce some of the gas and diesel emissions that communities also have to live with.

I'm glad your raising this, Richard Reibstein, because it's something that I think that in my work and experience, you just sort of take for granted that if you live near a highway, it's going to be noisy. You live near a factory; it's going to be noisy. Or you live near a bridge like we've got here in Detroit that goes over the Detroit River to Canada, and so you've got all of these trucks and trucks are just noisy. But it's an important issue, and you're right. I think that as we're looking also at these childhood impacts and how they affect learning and how they affect develop and as we're looking at lead and all these other things, how is this just another issue that's bombarding kids and bombarding our EJ communities?

I appreciate you too also noting about what took place during the Reagan administration, and I think it's important for this Council to look back. I think as we're looking again as another one of these cumulative impacts that we've got to pay attention to sound too and not just sort of think that, well, it's just one of those things that happens depending on where you live. At least other departments within the federal administration, transportation in particular, are trying to do ways to sort of mitigate these in infrastructure work that we should incorporate what that means also as part of these environmental justice and infrastructure plans across other agencies.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Excellent point, Sylvia Orduño. As we're in this age of building back better, we've got to think about these large-scale infrastructure projects and what is going to come as a result of those. I want to just lift up too something that Dr. Sacoby Wilson wrote in the chat so that it's in the record. He talks about adding noise mitigation as a part of community benefits agreements, improving noise ordinances, enhanced noise ordinance specific in overburdened communities where there are construction projects, making sure that there's not only noise control, but dust control. I think that communities need to make some real appeals to address those sorts of issues especially when new investments are coming to those communities. This is again something that we cannot afford to overlook, so thank you, everyone, who gave a comment on this, and thank you, Richard Reibstein, for bringing this issue to us.

Ms. Jacqueline Shirley, NEJAC Member: Thank you, Richard, for bringing the issue up. I think talking about building back better kind of reminds me of -- it brings a thought of the new infrastructure bill that President Biden is trying to bring forth. Some of these issues like noise and all the legacy redlining and systematic racism on how and where all the past infrastructure was built in this country. Maybe within that infrastructure bill, some advocacy group could ask, about fixing up some of the old problems that was created when we first started building infrastructure, where all the roads and interstates were built in low-income disenfranchised communities just because they didn't have a voice to say, hey, what about all the noise pollution that we're going to be suffering? What about all the air quality issues we're going to be suffering from? What about, what about, what about... all this infrastructure that is building in our communities?

Sometimes building back better is kind of going back and fixing what was wrong and the injustice done in the first place. So maybe some mitigation, repairs, and some of these sound barriers that Sylvia Orduño was talking about that were not put in certain neighborhoods but put in other neighborhoods. Maybe we could go back and build better and put up those sound barriers in the neighborhoods that didn't get them before. So that just kind of popped into my head about infrastructure and systematic racism and redlining and all these things that have occurred in the past and here we are in the future.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you and just lifting up one other thing that Dr. Sacoby Wilson put in the chat about natural barriers, things like tree canopy that helps mitigate both noise as well as air pollutants. So, something else to think about.

While we check for others, let me just read a couple of things that Mily Trevino-Sauceda wrote so that we have it in the record. She mentioned just kind of back to the noise issue, most packing sheds with agricultural workers had too much noise while working. This had not been addressed in many of these places. She also says that machinery that is used is very loud and that hasn't been addressed either. So, as we think about the number of concerns that we have about farm worker communities and agricultural workers, we can add noise as an issue of concern as well.

Ms. Kamita Gray, Public Commenter: My name is Kamita Gray with the BTB Coalition, Brandywine TB Southern Region Neighborhood Coalition. We're 12 miles outside of Washington, D.C. I want to say if moving to build back better is the theme of than we need to look at new systems and communities solutions to bring to the table because our communities are still being pilfered with air, water, land uses, air quality as some people mentioned before in getting rehabilitation to things being stopped in the theme as far as it relates to criteria pollutants.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair: Thank you, Kamita Gray, for your public comment. I'm going to ask if you could elaborate, though, a little bit more. You said some concerning language, communities being pilfered, and things have stopped related to criteria around pollutants. Can you explain a little bit more what's happening because I think, especially if you were on the meeting earlier, you heard that we're really trying to figure out how to incorporate particular issues in some of the work group discussions that we're having. It would be helpful to just learn a little bit more about what's happening in your community.

Ms. Kamita Gray, Public Commenter: We are 12 miles outside of Washington, D.C. We had a pool for three fossil fuel power plants were in a 2.9-mile radius. One power plant, because of a Title 6, is no longer in play to be put there, but it's still slated for the use of a power plant. We have 500 diesel trucks that roam around in that 2.9-mile radius. We have a sludge lagoon. We have a Superfund site that's still active that contaminated our water. One powerplant still flares. Our air quality is in the 97th percentile, and we just got approved for three more gas stations. So, in that 2.9-mile radius, we now have 11 gas stations along with the other things that are within that area.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair: Thank you for that. That's pretty awful. Can you talk a little bit more about the communities of residents who live in that small 2.9 radius?

Ms. Kamita Gray, Public Commenter: We are 72 percent African American. And it's about ten thousand people in the CDP area, so a very congested area. We also are inundated with carbon pollution, so we add 485,000 vehicle truck trips to that area that commute from Charles County into Prince George's County into D.C.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair: Can you give us an assessment of why this concentration exists there, maybe just a little of the historical context.

Ms. Kamita Gray, Public Commenter: It's all related to land use. There are no health constraints. Also, we are in the mid-Atlantic region for which we have Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative (RGGI), so there is trading of pollution which is the big issue.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair: Thank you very much for that. I caught a little bit I think when we were on the break. Did you happen to submit any written comments? That would be very helpful if you wouldn't mind doing that and elaborating a little bit more on what's happening here. I guess I'm also thinking too since you're just right outside the EPA zone, it would be good to understand more about what's going on with your community.

Ms. Kamita Gray, Public Commenter: Not yet. Okay.

Ms. Christina Cabrera, Public Commenter: I'm Christina Cabrera. My traditional name is Chunchip Dear Spirit of the Pocasset Wampanoag Tribe of the Pokanoket Nation. I am with Native Green headquartered in the state of Rhode Island. We work locally, regionally, nationally, and globally.

In the northeast region, there's hydropower that wants to be brought down to some of the states. We're trying to fight ISO, the organization that is determining how power is distributed, and yet some of our states are passing resolutions and bills at the state level that are against bringing hydropower. The issue of understanding what is a renewable resource and what is not, concerns about water and sea level rise for Rhode Island, and the saltification of water with the sea level rise concerns with indigenous issues. We have no access to waterfront or worship spaces and ceremonial spaces. There is no access to the original coastline and Grandfather ocean. Indigenous communities are charged or even penalized.

The Port of Providence has taken over important indigenous land where nearby areas were able to confirm that there have been indigenous remains and culture artifacts. We have been removed and taken out of the conversation stakeholder table which we created for the Port of Providence. Indigenous people grew from this land and whose generations and ancestors lived here in this land. We have been removed by EPA Region 1. There are many things that we would like to bring up to the administration and we would like to see if we could have the chance to put it in writing.

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO: Thank you, Christina Cabrera. I just put some information in the chat about where you could submit your public comments. We do have a form on our webpage. You can also send any comments to nejac@epa.gov.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you, Christina Cabrera, for your comment. Historically, how old is the port? You talked about how the Port of Providence took over ancestral lands and native peoples were kicked off of it. How long ago did that happen if you have a sense of it?

Ms. Christina Cabrera, Public Commenter: Well, historically, we would have been kicked off, yes. But specifically, I'm talking about right now is we had a grant from EPA. We created a stakeholder group to make sure that we would partition out fossil fuels and inter-renewables, and once the grant was over, certain people from Region 1 took over and effectively removed all indigenous people from the conversation.

Right now, there's a lawsuit against Region 1, and people don't understand that they are living on stolen lands. They're making decisions and impacting communities on the ground, especially the first nations who have been here from time in memorial. The impacts are great, and pollution and air quality and water quality and the remains, they've tried to erase all remains and move body remains from a nearby mall just so as to erase the existence of our people. There are gases being created and chemicals in the port that are explosive – and there are no hurricane barriers. The impacted radius would be 14 miles. It reaches Massachusetts as well. There's been a lot of studies on this, and we'd like to submit something in writing.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you for that. Please definitely do submit something in writing. While I'm just learning about this from a situation happening in Atlanta where I live, there is Chattahoochee brick company site where black people were basically engaged in convict leasing on that site. And so, there are, we believe, remains of people, and so folks are really trying to use some policies around sacred sites and that sort of thing. It kind of concerned me when you talked about remains being removed from the site, almost trying to erase the history of the people on the land. So again, I don't know a lot about it, but I would try looking into legislation around sacred sites, ancestral lands, burial grounds, those types of things just in case that is something that could be helpful in your situation. We definitely look forward to receiving your comments in writing and any elaboration that you're able to give.

Ms. Christina Cabrera, Public Commenter: Thank you. What's the timeframe for submitting?

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO: You have until May 20th to submit public comments.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair: I would absolutely encourage you to submit in writing what is going on in your community. I think that while we're taking notes and we're listening here, how you're interpreting it and experience it in your own words is especially helpful. I think we're really trying to figure out how within all that's being said in this new administration, that we can really maximize what it means to deliver upon environmental justice in communities. We're also in many ways pushing even the boundaries of this Council into what it means to participate in other spaces, conversations, and recommendations where it hasn't necessarily traditionally been but needs to be.

What you are raising makes me already think that these are conversations and information that needs to be had in other spaces too. We need to figure out what it is and how we take it up in NEJAC, but also how we forward and connect it to other spaces where these other conversations are happening so that we figure out how to get you a response at least in some way from, if not this space, other spaces. It's also about maximizing a given opportunity, and that's how I see this right now. Your written comments and just for everyone who's providing public comment, your written comments make it especially easier to share that information. If you will please do that, it would be really helpful for us to be better advocates.

Ms. Christina Cabrera, Public Commenter: We have created a report for the United Nations, and we're happy to attach that to our comments as well.

Ms. Ayako Nagano, NEJAC Member/Public Commenter: Today, I saw an opportunity, so I raised my hand to speak on behalf of the Stop the Money Pipeline campaign. The coalition is an international coalition of over 150 organizations strong, green non-profits from a lot of the United States like 350, Friends of the Earth, Greenpeace, Rainforest Action Network are all part of this coalition fighting pipelines. I just wanted to uplift, "The Line 3, a so-called "replacement" project, is a proposal for a new pipeline that would cover more than a thousand miles from Hardisty, Alberta to Superior, Wisconsin, transporting an average of 760,000 barrels of tar sands crude oil from Alberta each day with a capacity of 844,000 barrels per day. Despite ongoing legal challenges from the Red Lake Nation, the White Earth band of Ojibwe, Mille Lacs Band of the Ojibwe, Minnesota's own Department of Commerce, environmental organizations, and 13 brave youth intervenors, the construction on Line 3 continues." Some of the specific asks for the administration and I'm not sure. Some of it is just about financing. The Stop the Money Pipeline goes after the financiers of climate chaos of the pipelines. Another infrastructure creating new extraction infrastructure.

So one, require financial institutions to phase out financing for fossil fuels and deforestation; two, end all public money for corporations engaged in fossil fuels and deforestation; three, invest in black, brown, and indigenous communities and remedy past harms and promote a clean just transition for workers in the fossil fuel sector and frontline communities; and four, hold all firms accountable to respecting tribal nations, treaty, and sovereignty rights.

Currently, there is oil shock in the mid-East, people look to indigenous lands to build pipelines through. So the request from the Stop the Money Pipeline Coalition is to ensure that banks and other financial institutions or the government can't proceed with financing projects that will impact a tribal community without the free, prior, and informed consent of the tribal nations concerned and to uphold and honor tribal nations treaty rights. Thank you.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair: Thank you, Aya Nagano, for raising this very critical issue right now. Similarly, we're also fighting Line 5 in the upper peninsula of Michigan and what is a 67-year-old pipeline going right under the Straits of Mackinaw and threatening with 540,000 gallons of crude oil a day to the Great Lakes. There really is this sense of urgency as you're saying from what has been decades of concern through several administrations about how to address these problems which are not even just purely environmental concerns but straight-out human rights violations and even blatant disregard for what governors or other local governments have said you cannot do. These are violations permits have been revoked, terminated, yet corporate operators continue to do what they will.

This is something that needs a stronger voice on from EPA, especially to back up the states to back up local governments that are making these decisions and declarations and where there have been numerous studies. There has to be a way that we're also better engaging the EPA regulations around these protections that are needed because we know that these infrastructures, even within the ground or above ground for oil that are jeopardizing soil and water, even air quality, they are imminent. This isn't a matter of if; it's when. I'm just so glad that you brought this to the attention here of the Council, and this is something that I would also like us to see about maybe getting something in a letter sooner than later about needing a stronger response from EPA to better protect from environmental devastating consequences that are going to be happening.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Okay. Thank you again both, Aya Nagano and Sylvia Orduño. I don't see any other Council members with their hands raised, so I believe that is the end of our public comment period. Is that correct, Karen Martin?

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO: Yes, that is correct. There are no other attendees with raised hands in the meeting today.

Ms. Hermila Trevino-Sauceda, NEJAC member: This is what I was talking about earlier. Elvira Carvajal and Maria De Luna, if they're here, they were waiting to be named. Is this a possibility or not?

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO: Okay. Let me check the list and see if they were on. They were not on the registration list but let me see if they're in the meeting.

Ms. Hermila Trevino-Sauceda, NEJAC Member: In this case, if people are monolingual English speakers, she will be speaking in Spanish. So, if you can please use the English where it says interpretation so that the interpreter can be interpreting for you. Thank you.

Ms. Elvira Carajal, Public Commenter: (Spoken in Spanish: English translation via closed captioned interpreter.) Thank you for the opportunity to give us this space. I work as an organizer in the alliance community. I would like to call attention to the EPA by putting more attention on our colleagues, workers, and farmers. We continue to be exposed to pesticides, and exposed to the heat, but more than anything, part of the heat plus all the different chemicals leaves them dangerously exposed. I don't know if we would be able to put the picture of hands of recent farmer from three or four months who worked directly with farmers, and now this woman is very sick as you can see from the hands. The sickness on her hands is because she was exposed to the pesticides. And there is no respect for the workers when they go inside. They put no attention on this problematic situation. That is huge. They are just trying to hint that the waters are contaminated. Everything is contaminated the soil and the earth is contaminated.

We need to work with the groups like this one. We are part of it or working so this to be finished and we can heal. This land as we need it, as a human being, just see if you can see the next picture. I don't know if they can access that, but in so many cases as organizers, we work directly with the farmers. And me as a farmer, I know this is happening. I went through it. And now I gave myself to the work of telling workers to protect themselves as much as possible. We have had cases where children have been exposed, because workers are being exposed from the field at the farms, and they bring the pesticides into the house. We need to bring more attention to these problematic situations.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you for that comment. I ended up missing a little bit of it because I didn't have my interpretation channel on. But what I heard obviously just raises a very important issue with respect to exposure of farm workers to chemicals. I heard a mention of children, which is obviously also very concerning and just the fact that, because of those exposures, things are brought into the homes and other members of the households are being impacted as well. So, thank you so much, Elvira Carajal, for sharing with us today. Thank you.

Ms. Hermila Trevino-Sauceda, NEJAC Member: I'll say it in English, so she can be interpreted in Spanish. Elvira Carajal, can you say from what communities you are talking about? I imagine that it is not only one community, but you have been working with other organizers in other communities about this same issue. You've talked about two pictures that you wanted to present, but maybe it was kind of late that we sent those pictures of two women.

Can you explain a little bit more what communities these people are from? Do you want to say a little bit more?

Ms. Elvira Carajal, Public Commenter: (Spoken in Spanish: English translation via closed captioned interpreter). I am living in Florida. The people that are being exposed at this moment; they live here in the Homestead. They continue working at the OKRA, piece of the OKRA.

Ms. Hermila Trevino-Sauceda, NEJAC Member: Are you saying because they are indigenous, this is why they cannot read either English or Spanish?

Ms. Elvira Carajal, Public Commenter: Yes. (Spoken in Spanish: English via closed captioned interpreter). Well, there's some indigenous that speak their own language, but the information that they are supposed to have is not in their language. So we also have people that they have never had any education, and they don't know how to read. In order for them to apply pesticides, they need to understand what we are they applying.

Ms. Hermila Trevino-Sauceda, NEJAC Member: Does this only happen in Florida?

Ms. Elvira Carajal, Public Commenter: No. (Spoken in Spanish: English via closed captioned interpreter). They have 15 organizations in different states and from what I know, in all the states.

Ms. Jacqueline Shirley, NEJAC Member: Yes. Thank you for your comments. I'm glad you came to speak to us. It was a good reminder and an affirmation and confirmation for the NEJAC and us as a group working on now. We have work groups, and we're going to be updating and reviewing our past work to submit again to this new Administrator and one of the issues is farm workers and pesticides. I want you to know that this is an issue that has been and is a critical issue to the NEJAC and we have submitted and worked in the past for this. But this is going to be a good affirmation for us to recognize that in our 100-Days letter to the new EPA Administrator that these are current issues. Yes, they are our past work, but they are current and relevant and need attention now.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Yes, thank you again for that comment I wholeheartedly just echo what Jacqueline said these issues are. Thank you for raising this issue. When we met last together in Florida in 2020, we heard very loud and clearly that these are issues of huge concern for our farm worker communities. So, we will continue to push this issue and to elevate it, and definitely this will be a part of the correspondence to the EPA Administrator in the 100-Days letter that we have just been talking about today.

Ms. Carolyn Yee, Public Commenter: This is Carolyn in California, and I believe it was Christine Cabrera from Maine, a tribe in Maine, that needed guidance regarding federal laws mandating protection of coastal resources, specific archaeological, cultural, and prehistoric resources. Could I send her an email to contact me, and I could provide her some guidance?

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO: If you could send your information to NEJAC@epa.gov, we can make sure we connect you two.

Ms. Carolyn Yee, Public Commenter: Okay. Thank you.

Ms. Nayyirah Shariff, Public Commenter: My name is Nayyirah Shariff, and I live in Flint, Michigan. April 25th was the seventh-year anniversary of the beginning of the Flint Water Crisis. I would say over the course of those seven years, me personally, I've become more and more disappointed with the federal response to deal with some of these long-term impacts around what residents are facing. My fear as we are going through a woefully inadequate settlement process for damages is that this is going to be the model for other communities facing environmental injustice. The things that we fought for from the very beginning was just Medicare for all for life that we're still not receiving. The only thing that we've gotten was a Medicaid expansion for children under the age of 21 and pregnant women. And what that means for folks is you can't escape from a state that was responsible for poisoning you.

For the seventh-year anniversary, myself and other folks from Flint had sent an open letter. I'm not sure, but I don't want to speak for Dr. Ben Pauli, but I don't know if NEJAC has become apprised of the open letter of some of the things that we felt were missing and the actual design of the settlement agreement and just things that we're still fighting for. One of the things that I just wanted to briefly lift up was the fact that we need long-term health and educational support for residents because we don't know what's going to happen to us as we age. For me personally, my quality of life has totally changed. After being exposed to Flint water, I now have severe asthma. I can no longer drive because I have non-epileptic seizures. The amount that I would possibly have received does not really take into account all of the things that I experienced. So, thank you very much for your time.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you, Nayyirah Shariff. Every time I hear about the horror of what happened in Flint and what continues to happen, it just tugs at my heart. So just know that we are standing in solidarity with you, with other residents in Flint who are making demands on what it is that you need to carry on, to try to live healthy and productive lives after such a disaster, such a crisis of huge proportions that you never should have had to experience in the first place. So we appreciate you taking your time today and sharing your testimony and really lifting up concerns around the lack of sufficient response, even seven years after it's happened.

I feel like it's hard to really respond to it, but just know that we are in solidarity with you and that whatever we can do and lift up from this body that we will continue to do that until this issue is address in the way that it should be. Let me call on my colleagues Benjamin and Sylvia to make comment as well.

Dr. Ben Pauli, NEJAC Member: Thanks so much for your testimony, Nayyirah Shariff. First to address your point about the open letter, no, I have not shared that with the Council, but I certainly will send that around.

We, of course, you and I and some other residents authored another commentary on the settlement proposal that Flint residents have been invited to opt into that called out many of its limitations. And thanks to Dr. Sacoby Wilson for the invitation to author that commentary. I believe I did send that one, if I'm not mistaken back when that was published.

To your general point about the anniversary of the crisis and the work that remains to be done in Flint, every anniversary and we now have had seven of them since the switch over to the Flint River kind of becomes another opportunity to remind people of all of the demands that have been made by the community that have never been met right up to the present day. We have made some progress getting some pipes out of the ground and so forth, and a lot of money has come in. But there are big questions about just how effectively those resources have been used. We still have lead lines in the ground that haven't come out yet. We have a host of other infrastructural issues as well that have not been addressed as well as the lingering health impacts of the crisis and some real gaps with medical care as Nayyirah Shariff rightly mentioned among many other needs that again haven't been addressed.

Nayyirah Shariff, one thing to know is that our water infrastructure work group fully intends to revisit some of the issues that you have brought up. There was a letter that was written by NEJAC to the EPA about Flint back in 2017 that never got followed up on. So that's one of the things that we are going to be revisiting and I hope that we can continue to stay in touch here at the local level about all of the things that we and Flint need to keep lifting up to the Council and to the EPA. I just want you know that that work is very much ongoing. So thank you again for joining us today and giving your testimony.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair: Thank you, Nayyirah Shariff, very much for coming on here and providing an update. I work with Nayyirah Shariff regularly in Michigan around these lead issues and so I see the first-hand impacts of the toll this has taken on her life. As a community activist organizer, someone who is trying to also support the needs of other residents who don't have the information that they deserve and they run the full gamut of not being able to get bottled water from the state, being told by the state we're not giving you any more bottled water even though the lead service lines are still in the ground, water and sewer mains are still being replaced, had to sue multiple times to get the money from the state from the federal government so that they could at least in some ways mitigate the beginning of getting their lives back.

To hear again the seven-year anniversary is disgusting in many ways, and shame on us as a nation for allowing a whole city to be poisoned in this way and still not learning our lesson. What have we learned since? Everyone says across the country, well, we don't want to be another Flint but that's exactly what we've been setting up. We are not addressing seriously the lead poisoning crisis in so many communities. Thousands of water systems across the nation not wanting to put the money into the infrastructure that needs to be done. The federal government has disinvested from our states and communities. Though they helped build the systems, they have not wanted to do anything since to pay for the replacement of these lead service lines up until now, right? But again, money hasn't made its way down, and the local governments are allowed to make the decisions for how these plans are going to be rolled out.

So let me tell you right now, just 75 miles south in Detroit, we've got the highest number of lead lines probably in the country, nearly 100,000 of them. And because the EPA is listening to the Detroit Water and Sewage Department and granting these extensions of the timeline that they are given to replace the lines, it's very likely we won't get these lead service lines out for the next 30 to 40 years. That means a whole generation and a half of kids are going to be drinking lead-contaminated water in higher levels than normal. Again, no level is safe.

Again, one of these lead activists that we've been following and who's been trying to teach us about what happened in Flint and other communities says, it's the equivalent of drinking lead out of a straw. You start disrupting any of the lines in the system, everything starts getting dislodged. All of the corrosion inhibitors start breaking off, and we are now just setting up families for all kinds of jeopardies that they don't understand.

I appreciate that the EPA is now holding a set of hearings across the country in wanting to hear from people and what do you think we should do and tell us your stories. You don't need any more stories. You've got a whole city of stories starting seven years ago and even before that in Washington, D.C., another community that's just been devastated but again didn't get the same publicity. But we've got many Flints happening right now.

We've got to figure out as NEJAC how we take this more seriously, and push this EPA both in this whole following the money conversation we're having but demanding that these extensions not be allowed and that water systems not get to set the priorities for when they're going to get rid of these lead service lines in people's yards and connect them up with something so that they can have safe water whether it's going to be reverse osmosis systems mandating potable water delivery to communities as this work is happening.

Let me give you a small example too of what it looks like when water systems don't know what they're doing. On the east side of Detroit when they started removing some of the sewer and water mains, they passed out a water pitcher to all the residents on the block and one filter. You know what they did? They didn't even give them a filter rated for lead. So, promoting a false sense of security, use this pitcher, use this while we're doing the work in front of your house and you won't have to worry about any lead contamination. It wasn't until we exposed them and said, look, what are you doing? People don't want to use the water to begin with. Then you go and give them a filter not rated for lead, right? This is what's happening in our local systems.

Flint will only give us a snapshot of how bad it could be and how long it could last. So, we've got to come down as this Council and say, look, we've been seeing this for too many years. We've had Flint residents come here multiple times to tell us how bad it is and how it actually will play out, not can play out, will play out across the country in many communities. So, we're only seeing the beginning of how devastating this is going to be in our systems and our already impacted EJ communities.

Again, Nayyirah Shariff, thank you so much for coming here and providing these comments and, Dr. Ben, for all the work that you're doing there with other allies in Flint. But I want to make sure that we really get this point across to this Council and to the EPA. So, you can be sure that I'm going to stay vigilant on this. Nayyirah Shariff, I don't know if you want to add anything else while you close out, but I just so appreciate what you and so many leaders in Flint have been doing.

Ms. Nayyirah Shariff, Public Commenter: No, I don't really have anything to add. But thank you, all, for listening to me and continuing to tell the story about Flint because this is something that generations have dealt with before and if we're not careful, this is going to be something that's going to impede our communities from thriving.

Dr. Sacoby Wilson, NEJAC Member: I wasn't going to say anything, but as, Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, you spoke and then Sylvia, my anger started rising. I remember being back in 2017 the meeting in Minnesota. As Na'Taki Osborne Jelks said, how can your heart not break. Nayyirah Shariff just said, she's been impacted, right? She talked about asthma. Did you say epilepsy? Is that what you said, Nayyirah Shariff? Can you say that again what you're experiencing?

Ms. Nayyirah Shariff, Public Commenter: Non-epileptic seizures.

Dr. Sacoby Wilson, NEJAC Member: She's been experiencing seizures. Thank you. So as Sylvia just said, what can we do to elevate this issue? And this is quite a shout to Richard and the connection between NEJAC and WHEJAC. Sylvia Orduño, I appreciate you talk about the money, follow the money that Justice 40 infrastructure. We're talking about infrastructure. We need to press upon this president that amount that he's asking for is not enough. You need a trillion dollars. I'm just guessing, y 'all. I'm just putting a number out there.

If you're talking replacing lead lines across the country, that has to be a serious issue that's elevated, maybe above some other. I mean, you talk about prioritization. If we don't prioritize getting rid of lead, if we don't prioritize our kids, how are you going to put America first if you don't put your kids first. So how are we going to address these issues?

As Nayyirah Shariff talked about, the future of children in this country, multiple generations of children have been exposed to lead. Most of them are children have got a cap on their potential because of neurological, neurocognitive impacts. If we're not investigating in this and understanding these early life exposures, but it's just not the kids who are here, it's the kids that haven't been born yet. Folks have been exposed to lead. If you're pregnant, and during pregnancy, that lead gets released into your womb, the fetus is impacted. As Sylvia Orduño said, we have to – push this up on the priority when it comes to infrastructure.

With this current block of dollars and future dollars and I'm not sure – Richard Moore, I'm going to pass the mic to you -- I'm not sure how we can push that harder, but it has to be put on the top of the list because it has so many ramifications for the long-term health and wellbeing of individuals but the whole life course of communities. People have already been impacted, so many people have been thrown away because of lead exposure, not physically, but how we treat folks we see with lead as we treat people in other parts of the country.

Mr. Richard Moore, NEJAC Member: Thank you. I was also not planning on making comment, but there's several things that I think are overlaps with what we've heard within the testimony today during public comment. One thing that I did realize is that we are commemorating the thirtieth anniversary of the first People of Color Summit that took place in 1991 in Washington, D.C. I say that in this reference because then I additionally, as the Deputy Administrator was speaking, realized that and I hadn't put the years together, but that I've been with the NEJAC Council now for 27 years. I haven't put the years together until she made that comment. I've either been on the NEJAC or have been in interaction with the NEJAC for the last 27 years. I'm saying that because it's not really about Richard; it's really about the hundreds upon hundreds upon hundreds of people that have come forward and testified through blood, sweat, and tears to testify on behalf of EJ communities.

There are several pieces of this with the intersection, and I'm going to do this very quickly because I know. One, we have been talking about many of the folks -- and I've said this before - that have testified 27 years ago. I want to Council to keep that in mind. The Mossville folk for example, testified 27 years ago, the folks from Alaska and others, Military Toxics and the impact on our communities on our villages and so on. If we're going to get deep down in because I don't want to get riled up here either, but if we're going to get deep down, then we've got to begin to look at the question systemic racism and how we're going to be able as a Council without taking the whole world on at one time. This is an EPA FACA, and so how we're going to get deep into what's been said and how we're going to in practice start dismantling the racism that has been the result of many of the issues that we're talking about, all of the issues that we're talking about. Now I have also had the opportunity to visit many of the community throughout this country and not in a NEJAC capacity, sometimes with NEJAC, because we used to do as part of the NEJAC Council meetings, we would also do some field trips. We would go out and visit with some of the communities where the Council was being held at.

Just lastly, just quickly to say, this is an incredible NEJAC Council all the way as a stakeholders group, and so I hope those that are listening from the state agencies -- and I hope there is folks on here from state agencies that are listening here from the regions -- and the trust thing that spoken about in the beginning, we have a distrust for federal agencies, state agencies, and we have very good reasons to have that distrust. Trust don't come easy, and the only way we're going to start building that trust is by beginning to dismantle system racism. Madam Chair, I will leave it there and thank you, Council members, for allowing these few minutes to speak.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you, Richard Moore. Dr. Sacoby Wilson also mentioned that this is something that's critical to get the interagency work group engaged on. He mentions that this is a FEMA issue. It's a Homeland Security issue as we talk about water infrastructure. Obviously, this is critical infrastructure in our communities, and we see really firsthand what can happen when that infrastructure goes wrong or is neglected, isn't serviced in the way that it should be, isn't treated in the way that it should be. Not only do we not want to continue to see that example in Flint, but we don't want other communities to face it. But we've got to address what's happening in Flint, so that's very critical.

I think that appears to be it on that comment, and, Nayyirah Shariff, thank you for being here. We appreciate it, and we appreciate you so much. I do see that Karen is saying we have the picture that was referenced earlier with Elvira Carajal, so do we want to show that now?

Ms. Hermila Trevino-Sauceda, NEJAC Member: Thank you. Okay. Elvira Carajal wanted to talk about Jovita. Jovita's the one on top. This woman was poisoned by pesticides. She was working in a green house. Gradually after she was poisoned, there were other issues that came out, and the organization she used to work with before, Farmer Grass Association of Florida who presented last year, they helped her get some wage theft had been happening. But they could not do anything about the pesticide issues because, by the time that she went to the doctor, everything in the blood could not show. But eventually, gradually, she started having a lot of health issues and became blind. Right now, she's having a lot of problems with her kidneys and has been getting dialysis twice a week. This is her story and she's been interviewed before because of what happened to her. This happened several years back.

The other woman, the hands that are shown, are her being exposed to pesticides also in the fields, and at the same time, you can see in her skin in her hand issues. A doctor could tell her, oh, you have some kind of allergy, but it wasn't the allergy. That was her exposure to pesticides, and we'd seen other workers with the same situation. These are the women from Homestead, Florida, and there's story that we have. We have stories that are video or audio where the women are saying their exposures and how some of them have also had children with special needs.

In California, there's pockets of areas where families had to join to see in what way they could help their children because their children are having all sorts of health issues and were born with those health issues because they, as women, were working as a pregnant woman. They were working while they were exposed to the chemicals. That's more or less what Elvira Carajal was trying to present. And we have stories from upstate New York, from Oregon, from the state of Washington, from California, from Florida, and it's very sad. Some of the women also have stories. Elvira Carajal has her own story about being pregnant and having a miscarriage because, while she was working, she was exposed, and she didn't know at the time. When she had the miscarriage, she was just told it was because she was working, but they never told her it was because of the chemicals. They're somewhat the same kind of chemicals that these women were exposed to. So that's what she wanted to say. Thank you.

Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair: Thank you for that, Mily Trevino Saucedo. That just took me back to Jacksonville last year and all the testimonies that we heard. So, this is just another that is completely devastating, absolutely devastating. Thank you for sharing it and I know that our work group will be on top of really elevating these issues. If there isn't anyone who would like to make comment on that in terms of the Council members, that might now be the end of our public comment period.

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO: That's correct, Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks. There are no more speakers. So, we're right up at our dinner break. So, we're going to break and come back at 6:00 p.m., so you have about 25 minutes. And then we'll come back and finish our business meeting discussion.

NEJAC BUSINESS MEETING REFLECTION & CONVERSATION

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, reconvened to proceed with the business meeting. She turned the floor to Ms. Orduño.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, thanked the Council for their hard work and attention today. She stated that four workgroups were established at the March meeting. She apologized for missing one work group, NEPA, and asked that this work group be established today along with the recommendation for another work group. She verified and confirmed that a quorum was present.

She asked the Council members that volunteered to take notes during the public comment period if they could identify some of the highlights and asks of the Council. She noted that this would help to identify what may be incorporated within the existing work groups and what issues are outstanding but are related to other things discussed.

Ms. Karen Sprayberry, NEJAC Member, wanted to go back to the public commenter that mentioned the noise. She identified the Federal Department of Transportation noise map online. She noted that it is called the Transportation Noise Map. She stated that it looks like a good resource that can possibly be laid on the EJ screening map. She noted that the FAA is also doing noise surveying. She explained that there are agencies doing things around noise, but no one is informed because everyone stays in their silos. She suggested that the NEJAC invite the Department of Transportation to the next meeting to discuss the noise map.

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, stated that she would add the link to the notes and put it in the team's channel as well.

Dr. Jan Fritz, NEJAC Member, reminded the group to put what actions are being taken. She noted that Sylvia mentioned that there was information currently on the lead and water situation. She stated that there is an opportunity to write a separate letter and make it part of a work group. She noted an example being the issue of pesticides. She stated that there is a lot of information on pesticides as well. She stated that by the end of the discussion it is hopeful that action items will be outlined.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, stated that notes identified that there were nine public commenters. She noted that the public comments spoke to areas with existing workgroup and those issues could be incorporated. She asked the members to be mindful of this throughout the discussion, as well as which workgroups need more help or leadership.

Ms. Orduño stated that the farmworker pesticide issues raised today is something that Council members has noted previously, and it is critical that this be addressed. She noted that currently there are just three council members on that workgroup, and a Chair is needed. She stated that currently the work group consists of Dr. Jan Fritz, Mily Trevino-Sauceda, and Cemelli de Aztlan. She asked if there were any other council members that are interested in working in that work group. She stated that the work group is also in need of a Chair to work toward the 100-day letter timeline and ensure issues are incorporated as needed.

Dr. Jan Fritz, NEJAC Member, stated that Mily is the expert. She stated that she is very interested in the group, and pesticides, and how they affect consumers, and is happy to take part in it, but thinks Mily should be the chair.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, paused the work group Chair discussion and asked George to pull up documents to review during the discussions. She turned to looking at the other work groups, the PFAS/PFOA. She stated that John Doyle, Ginny King, Dr. Sandra Whitehead, and herself belonged to this group. She asked if there were any other council members that were interested in that work group. She stated that Dr. Whitehead is willing to co-chair but couldn't take the full load, thus needing someone to help share in the facilitation/coordination of work. Dr. Ben Pauli and another NEJAC member agreed to join the work group.

Ms. Orduño turned to the Water Infrastructure Work Group. She stated this group has Dr. April Baptiste, John Doyle, Aya Nagano, and Dr. Na'Taki Osborne Jelks, Jeremy Orr, Dr. Ben Pauli, Jacqueline Shirley, and herself. She stated that the group has two co-chairs, Dr. Osborne Jelks, and Jaqueline, who have agreed to get that work coordinated.

Ms. Orduño stated that all of the work groups have sent out messages to get members coordinated and more messages will follow this meeting. She asked if anyone else was interested in joining the Water Infrastructure work group, and stated that it was in part follow up to the water charge that the Council sent to the Administrator and also looking at other issues that have been raised since the report.

Dr. Sacoby Wilson, NEJAC Member, stated that he was interested in joining the work group. He noted that he does a lot of work on water issues, storm water issues, sewer water issues. He stated that he has documents and things to contribute.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, turned to the Public Health and Air Quality work group. She stated that the members are Sacoby Wilson, Venu Ghanta, Melissa McGee Collier, Aya Nagano, Jerome Shabazz, Dennis Randolph, and Cemelli de Aztlan. She asked if anyone else was interested in joining that work group. She stated that the goal of each council member participating in at least one workgroup was accomplished. She stated that the two co-chairs are Dr. Wilson and Ms. McGee Collier.

Ms. Orduño circled back to the original work group and asked if Cemelli Aztlan and Dr. Jan would be willing to chair the workgroup to get the work started. She stated that they can follow up with Mily to see if this is something that she would be willing and able to co-chair. Ms. Aztlan agreed to co-chair.

Ms. Orduño then reminded the Council that she failed to bring forward NEPA as a work group at the last meeting. She asked if the Council was in agreement with approving a workgroup for NEPA.

Ms. Jacqueline Shirley, NEJAC Member, reminded the Council of the last in-person meeting in Jacksonville with a lot of discussion about NEPA from public commenters and NEJAC members about the rule changes. She stated that those are changes in the rules and those have been finalized and moved forward. She asked if NEPA is now the terrible beast that the NEJAC is fighting as she was not up on the rule changes that sparked so much of the negativity toward NEPA and the desire to do something as a body.

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, stated there was discussion at the last meeting regarding the rule change. She stated that the rule did go into effect. She stated that at the fall meeting there was public comments around NEPA, and the Council still wanted to compose a letter and outline what the issues were with that legislation or the rule that was put in place. She also noted that there were additional NEPA issues that the Council wanted to work on which would be the focus of the group.

Ms. Jacqueline Shirley, NEJAC Member, asked if NEPA was law or an EPA regulation that the Administrator can reverse? She asked was it a reversible thing that the Administrator could do, or does it have to go through Congress.

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, stated that NEPA is not a law or regulation under EPA, it is under CEQ. She stated that the Council is able to make any comment or recommendation that they would like about the issue.

Ms. Jacqueline Shirley, NEJAC Member, stated that it was said that the president can reverse NEPA and asked if anyone could verify that. She stated that it was also said that there is a litigation that is happening and pushing back on the rollbacks. She noted that if NEJAC gets the court involved, it would be harder for administrations to come in and make sweeping rollbacks as was done previously.

Ms. Melissa McGee-Collier, NEJAC Member, stated that her comment had to do with the air monitoring work group. She noted that she recalled the name of the group as Public Health and Air Monitoring. She stated that she would like to modify it so it is just Community Air Monitoring and whatever it is will address public health. She cautioned the title of the work group giving the impression that the focus is more public health related than air monitoring. She recommended that the work group title be changed to Community Air Monitoring if no one has a problem with it.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, stated that she just wanted to finish up the previous topic to make sure no one had any opposition to the NEPA work group. She stated that she wanted to make sure there was a consensus to proceed with forming the work group. No one opposed.

Ms. Melissa McGee-Collier, NEJAC Member, stated that she was not opposed to another work group, but would recommend a thorough review of what has already been done before the letter is written. She stated that sometimes there is a tendency to reinvent the wheel when a lot of things are already in place.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, concurred. She stated that the intent is to highlight reoccurring issues that are still outstanding from the last administration and as a continuation of follow up from previous Council meetings. She explained that the approval of the NEPA work group was overlooked at the March meeting which is why it is being approved now.

Ms. Orduño transitioned to discuss Ms. McGee-Collier's recommendation for the name change of the Public Health and Air Monitoring workgroup to Community Air Monitoring.

Dr. Sacoby Wilson, NEJAC Member, stated that the public health part is important. He expressed the need to explain specifically why the public health part is important and the community air monitoring. He stated that NAAQS regulatory monitoring does not address public health impacts and therefore is not responsive to the exposure to disease surveillance needs of site-specific communities. He stated that even if it's not in the title, that has to be up front as it relates to what the NEJAC is doing around community-based air quality monitoring. He explained that this in part is why, at the local level, people want better monitoring because of the chronic conditions, the asthmas, and things they're experiencing. He stated that the monitoring that is out there does not reflect these things and is not capturing that hyper-local, spatial-temporal gradient that is happening.

Dr. Wilson stated that he would be more comfortable with the title of Air Quality Health. He stated that he did not want to lose the point of why the current system doesn't work. He stated that it is health related, and tracking exposures has to be discussed and connected to health to inform policy and decision making.

Dr. Jan Fritz, NEJAC Member, agreed with the suggestion of Community Air Monitoring. She stated that health is connected to all of the things that the NEJAC is doing.

Ms. Jacqueline Shirley, NEJAC Member, stated that she agrees with both Ms. McGee-Collier and Dr. Wilson on the name change. She stated that Air Monitoring Health was suggested. She explained that when she sees the title, Public Health, it sparked a bunch of different things inside because public health is a discipline within itself. She concurred with the title of Air Monitoring Health or something that does not refer to a whole discipline of public health. She stated that as an MPH, the suggestion would be to eliminate the title Public Health and use maybe Air Monitoring Health or Community Air Monitoring Health.

Mr. Michael Tilchin, NEJAC Vice Chair, stated that community air monitoring is called out in the American Jobs Plan and there are dollars moving in that direction. He stated that it is something that NEJAC, led by Dr. Wilson, has been focused on for a long time. He stated that this would be timely as the group is going to address the issue of community air monitoring. He stated that the community air monitoring piece is important because it has momentum by being called out in the American Jobs Plan.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, asked if there was an agreement to change the work group title to the Community Air Monitoring work group with the understanding of what's been captured around the intent. All Council members were in agreement.

Ms. Orduño moved to the last recommendation of adding one more work group. She stated that this does come from past conversations and discussion at the last Council meeting in March where concerns around the issues of finance, economic justice, investments, and resources that are part of federal proposals and plans for distributing resources and other kinds of investments into EJ communities were discussed. She stated that in participating in the WHEJAC public meetings, conversations are happening specifically around the Justice40 Initiative and how to ensure that there is a particular percentage of federal investment going to EJ communities for identified projects.

Ms. Orduño stated that the Council have been in talks regarding how EPA is identifying priorities and where resources are being distributed for many of the issues among legacy community problems, emerging issues, and longstanding problems. She stated that creation of a work group that would align around these issues, to including RFPs and work with other federal advisory councils or boards, for example the Environmental Financial Advisory Board, is suggested. She asked for comments regarding the creation of this work group.

Ms. Jacqueline Shirley, NEJAC Member, stated that with finance and investment the committee would need to make sure there are not any negative unintended consequences when starting to scrutinize EPA's programs and how they are or are not spending money. She cautioned that sending a trigger over to the inspector general. She noted years back when the inspector general ended the IGAP program. She explained that EPA has a mission in what is supposed to be done by policy. She explained that there was the notion that IGAP was spending the money on implementation programs and things that were really critical activities, but actually IGAP is really for capacity building to have the tribes build their capacity so they could take over these programs that the IGAP was found to be funding. She just cautioned the NEJAC to be careful from the beginning when it comes to following the money.

Ms. Shirley went on to explain that she didn't want the committed to poke the inspector general, especially over at the EPA, if it might hurt the very programs that the NEJAC is trying to enhance or improve. She stated that when it comes down to it, it is about regulation and compliance and enforcement.

Dr. Sacoby Wilson, reiterated that it is an important committee and a very important moment to the Justice40 Initiative. He stated that when it comes to tax credits, tax incentives, procurement supply chain, RFPs, CFPs, some of the environmental projects, requests for proposals, call for proposals, various tax credit programs, any dollars that come down the EPA, the NEJAC should know where every dollar is going. He recalled that at the WHEJAC meeting there was mention of a financial calculator being created for the Department of Energy. He stated that there should be something similar within the EPA. He stated that there is a need to know how money is used and the return on investment of those dollars as it relates to environmental justice communities. He stated Richard being on this committee, and also Richard on the WHEJAC committee, is an opportunity to have some cross pollination and coordination.

Ms. Melissa McGee-Collier, NEJAC Member, stated that the work group is a good work group to have but the scope is wide and if you're tracking money, it's a lot of money to track to complete a report. She stated that there are also a lot of programs through which the money is distributed. She spoke in favor of the work group, noting that she just felt the scope is too broad. She stated that it should be narrowed down perhaps to focus on one particular program, whether it's the Clean Water Act or the Clean Air Act or a Brownfields or a Superfund.

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, added that timelines should be considered, and some work groups have multiple scopes that they want to focus on. She stated that they would like the NEJAC to set some milestones on what to tackle first. She stated that some work groups would be standing work groups on the Council throughout this year and next, so looking at the work in phases is a concept to keep in mind.

Mr. Jerome Shabazz, NEJAC Member, stated that the WHEJAC is going to be an interagency group and the scope should be broad enough to see the common linkage to other agencies. He noted for example having programs that focused on brownfields and when looking at community outcome after cleanup it is an urban farm, it may connect to the Department of Agriculture, it may be community development, it may connect with HHS in terms of healthcare facilities, it might be doing some real estate development for low-impact housing that connects with HUD. He stated that the interagency component is a significant benefit to communities that are seeking resources to appropriately develop their communities. He explained that the gaps on the ground that communities don't usually have the bandwidth to connect with can be filled by agencies in the areas where that funding may be available.

Mr. Shabazz stated that the NEJAC will create a seamless approach to not only identifying the environmental hazards and disparities in communities but being able to identify the resources to allow life after cleanup. He stated that the interagency approach is important to cover air quality issues in communities as it includes infrastructural development of increasing the amount of trees, which ends up being factors around storm water management. He stated that the idea of the environment is a seamless matter that's affects every agency along the White House panel. He stated that the NEJAC does not want to narrow themselves down to the point where there cannot be engagement with all the respective agencies appropriately. He approved the idea of the work group and feels that it is important.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, stated that in many ways NEJAC has taken a lead and been at this for many years and there is a space for leadership and modeling. She noted however, that even within the EPA, there is much to be said by way of what is happening in the determination, distribution, and prioritization of resources. She explained that it could be asked of the folks that are participating in this workgroup, should it be approved, to start looking at ways the work group can be shaped to identify some of the priorities that are beneficial in the short term, but also looking at the evolution.

Dr. Sacoby Wilson, NEJAC Member, shared a blog with the committee on environmental benefits districts that looked at the state of Maryland regarding a concept called eco-districts. He stated that you can possibly use the EJ screening tool to market micro-target communities with the most need. He stated that it is the construct of the ecodistrict, environmental business district, an environment opportunity zone where all the dollars that the EPA has to address those kind of concerns and you micro-target the areas and that helps in micro-targeting dollars to change the tax incentive. He stated that the whole construct allows you to bring it across the EPA without having to look into one particular program. He advised that he would send the committee the paper that was written three years ago and noted case studies like the California green zones or the Kansas City case study.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, stated that a lot of good ideas have been captured for developing a process for what the work group would entail. She asked that the Council allow the space in the form of a work group to develop the group with the comments and feedback offered. She stated that for the short term, thinking about something that can be offered by way of the issues as a contribution to the 100-day letter. And also, medium and long-term to think about what are the issues that have been framed that could be incorporated into the work group and particular policy framing or priority setting.

Ms. Orduño asked the group if they felt they can approve the Finance and Investment work group with all that has been heard. The Council agreed, by show of hands, that the work groups should be formed. She stated that Dr. April and Dr. Sacoby volunteered to lead the group.

Ms. Karen Sprayberry, NEJAC Member, noted that the first public commenter, Brandi, could be a good candidate for the technical assistance grant for brownfields as she mentioned having a brownfield in the community. She stated that this would be a nice start to bringing in a third-party academia resource to help that could potentially address other issues as well.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, stated that the applications are open until June 1st. She stated that she would ask if Dr. Ben, Jeremy, and Cheryl can look into it as they are looking at issues around Region 5. She stated that the group will follow up with Brandi and see what other Michigan or region-related contacts and resources the NEJAC can align with Kalamazoo.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, thanked Ms. Nagano for organizing the comments. She turned to the Council for any last input. Hearing none, she moved to the closing remarks to adjourn the meeting.

CLOSING REMARKS & ADJOURN

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, reviewed the timeline for the workgroups to confirm the goals for the end of summer. She noted that at the last meeting it was stated that the workgroups would start meeting from April through August 11th and would provide early updates at that meeting. She stated that the plan now is for workgroups to start meeting and prepare to provide updates at the June 17th meeting with hopes to get input and feedback from the NEJAC Council on recommendations to finalized by the end of the summer.

Ms. Martin explained that through the summer there will be time to continue to work on those recommendations to develop a more robust draft to share at the August 18th and 19th meeting for a vote to move recommendations forward. She stated the goal is to have the work completed by the end of the fiscal year to include it as part of the annual report and also meet the requirements for the Federal Advisory Committee Act and to submit to the Federal Advisory Committee Act database. She noted that some workgroups are already scheduling meetings and starting to meet. She stated that in June, the work groups will report on their initial discussions and recommendations and receive input and those will be finalized in August.

Ms. Martin stated that the plan is also to connect EPA staff with the workgroups. She stated that once the scope is defined, the appropriate EPA staff will be added to the workgroups. She stated that the OEJ staff will also be divided up to support the workgroups. She stated that the timeline will be shared with everyone.

Mr. Michael Tilchin, NEJAC Vice Chair, noted that the timetable looks very similar to the 100-day letter timetable but wanted to make sure there is no confusion that this is not the timetable for the 100-day letter as it is a much more compressed timeframe. He stated that the 100-day letter helps the workgroups accelerate the work. He noted that the need to get to work quickly on the 100-day letter will help all the work groups meet the deadlines established for more comprehensive workgroup reports.

Ms. Sylvia Orduño, NEJAC Chair, suggested a side by side comparison to help minimize the confusion. She also encouraged the Council members, who haven't yet, to meet with George for training on Teams so that they can have access to documents and familiarize themselves with making changes. She turned the floor over to Dr. Osborne Jelks for closing comments.

Dr. Na'taki Osborne Jelks, NEJAC Vice Chair, stated that missing from the 100-day letter is guidance or suggestions regarding the relationship between WHEJAC and NEJAC and how that collaboration and partnership should happen. She asked that any Council members having an idea regarding that partnership share that in the draft or send that feedback to her.

Ms. Karen Martin, DFO, offered closing comments. She made note of the staff helping out for the meetings and gave special thanks to George Ward, the producer for the meeting and Paula Flores-Gregg, currently on detail from EPA Region 6 and OEJ, the interpreters, Jackie Moore and Ziomara Crespo and Kurd Ali, with ENDYNA. The meeting was officially adjourned the meeting

WRITTEN PUBLIC COMMENTS FROM MAY 6, 2021 MEETING

Full Name (First and Last): Julia Cohen

Name of Organization or Community: Plastic Pollution Coalition

City and State: Washington, D.C.

Type of Comment: Written Comment Only

Brief description about the concern: Plastic pollution is an environmental and social justice issue which disproportionately impacts Black and Brown communities, Indigenous communities, and frontline communities across the U.S. and around the world. Each stage of the plastic lifecycle from extraction, manufacturing, to use and disposal poses significant risks to human health and contributes to the climate crisis. Health problems associated with plastics throughout the lifecycle include numerous forms of cancers, diabetes, organ malfunctions, impact on eyes, skin, and other sensory organs, birth defects and many other impacts. Plastic is made from oil and gas. Globally, in this year alone, researchers estimate that the production and incineration of plastic will pump more than 850 million metric tons of greenhouse gases into the atmosphere, equivalent to the entire aerospace industry. There are over 350 million tons of plastic produced each year, of which 91 percent is NOT recycled. The U.S. generates the most plastic waste per capita of any country and exports 225 shipping containers of plastic waste per day to countries with limited or nonexistent waste management systems, where plastic may be crudely processed in unsafe facilities and incinerated in open areas, creating additional pollution and health problems.

What do you want the NEJAC to advise EPA to do? : In March 2021, Senator Jeff Merkley (D-OR) and Representative Alan Lowenthal (D-CA) reintroduced the Break Free From Plastic Pollution Act, the most comprehensive bill to address the plastic pollution crisis ever introduced in Congress. The Break Free From Plastic Pollution Act of 2021 expands and improves upon a previous version of the bill proposing proven solutions to protect impacted communities, reform our broken recycling system, and shift the financial burden of waste management off of municipalities and taxpayers to where it belongs: the producers of plastic waste. NEJAC should advise the EPA to support the Break Free from Plastic Pollution Act, in addition to the Plastic Free President and Stimulus recommendations put forth by the Break Free from Plastic movement.

Dear NEJAC,

Today, a coalition of 600+ organizations are delivering over 100,000 petition signatures demanding President Biden and his administration take bold actions on plastics. Here's a livestream recording of our petition delivery action. We've seen the administration take some laudable actions on climate and environmental justice. Ignoring plastics is a mistake -- we can't talk about the climate crisis and environmental justice without talking about plastics. In December of last year, a diverse coalition of more than 600 organizations launched the Presidential Plastics Action Plan, which outlines 8 actions President Biden and agencies can take without Congress to curb the plastic pollution crisis. Now, as we pass the 100-day mark of the new administration, we are urging President Biden urgently take action on plastics. I'm attaching the petition signatures and the full Presidential Plastics Action Plan as a pdf. Section 4 of the Presidential Plastics Action plan is "advance environmental justice in petrochemical corridors". We look forward to hearing about how NEJAC is advancing plastics as an issue.

Brief description about the concern: I have been working since the late 1980's on the Safe Drinking Water Act/Superfund cleanup at Joint Base Cape Cod. I have worked with members of the Mashpee Wampanoag Tribe on the cleanup of the pollution plans and mitigation of the sources. The University of Rhode Island STEEP (Sources, Transport, Exposure & Effects of PFAS) grant is developing an Environmental Justice project with the Mashpee Wampanoag tribe on PFAS levels in the food that their members obtains from hunting and fishing. The contaminants of concern include perchlorate; BTEX; 1, 4 dioxane; PFAS chemicals and heavy metals (thallium; mercury and lead) which have led to higher breast cancer rates on the Upper Cape and multiple health issues with tribal members. Ashumet Pond water and sediments are contaminated by methyl mercury and PFAS chemicals which have contaminated public and private drinking water wells in Mashpee and Falmouth. It is likely that finfish and shellfish are contaminated by these toxic chemicals which are consumed by tribal members and recreational fishermen/women. I used to be the Recreational Fisheries Coordinator in the Northeast at the Fisheries Laboratory in Woods Hole, Ma. When I met with saltwater angling groups they were concerned about toxic chemicals (PCBs; methyl mercury; red tide bloom toxins; etc. in finfish and shellfish). I participated in the EPA-lead Waquoit Bay Watershed Ecological Risk Assessment study which studied this groundwater-based system which runs from Ashumet Pond to Waquoit Bay. I am developing an introduction to challenges being faced in the Cape Cod Aquifer for the newsletter of a local church on the Upper Cape which will include EJ concerns.

What do you want the NEJAC to advise EPA to do? : I want EPA Region 1 to require the Air Force Center for Civil Engineering to monitor finfish and shellfish in Ashumet Pond and Waquoit Bay for PFAS chemicals and if found to develop health studies of potential impacts on sensitive populations (women of childbearing age and children; adults with pre-existing health conditions - like ulcerative colitis and cancers). The development of the Ma. DEP perchlorate mcl of 2 ppt provides a good case study. EPA is still developing its perchlorate mcl.

Brief description about the concern: I am submitting this statement with Jamie Banks, the Executive Director of the nonprofit organization Quiet Communities. I am chair of the organization's legal advisory committee. We draw attention to the impact of noise on public health and that a large burden of noise is experienced by environmental justice communities. Noise reduction is feasible and NEJAC can help draw attention to opportunities before us to reduce it. EPA's Noise Control program should be restored, new standards developed, and access to measurement and resources for noise reduction. Both health and environmental benefits will result from inclusion of this matter in the agenda for justice.

What do you want the NEJAC to advise EPA to do: Take up the issue generally, concerning its effects on wildlife as well as people. Specifically, request funding from Congress to restore the Noise Control Program. Request funding to enable coordinating efforts among the many federal agencies that can play a role in reducing the impacts of noise. Understand the connection between noise and the use of combustion engines and their pollution. Work with OSHA to protect lawn care workers wearing such engines on their back. Work with the FAA to reduce impacts near airports. Work with universities and the Commerce Department to develop quieter technologies.

Given that I'm #29 out of 30 commenters registered to speak in 60 minutes, I will cede my precious minutes to those who come before me and will refrain from providing my own oral comments on Thursday. Instead, I will provide a written comment via the electronic form. I am also attaching a recent, related article that I would like included in the meeting record for consideration by the NEJAC.

Brief description about the concern: EPA's implementation of the risk evaluation process under the Toxic Substances Control Act is flawed and is not protecting chemically-overburdened communities from toxic chemical exposures.

What do you want the NEJAC to advise EPA to do? : We request that NEJAC (1) advise EPA to identify all potentially exposed and susceptible subpopulations and conduct separate analyses to determine if these chemicals present an unreasonable risk to these groups, and (2) ask that NEJAC meet regularly with EPA's Office of Chemical Safety and Pollution Prevention and form an internal TSCA working group.

In response to discussions at the meeting:

The University of Rhode Island STEEP (Sources, Transport, Exposure and Effects of PFAS) grant has monitored 25-30 PFAS chemicals in > 200 private drinking water wells in Cape Cod towns. Dr. Laurel Schaidler (Silent Spring Institute) can provide more details on the results. The COVID-19 Pandemic has interrupted this sampling program of private drinking water wells. The six PFAS chemicals in the Ma. DEP mcl (PFOS; PFOA; PFNA; PFDA; PFHxS and PFHpA) have been detected in about half the private drinking water well tests (mostly at levels below 20 parts per trillion). PFAS contamination has also been found in groundwater in Cape Cod watersheds where no AFFF were utilized, so there are other sources of contamination (septic systems; landfills; athletic fields with plastic turf; etc.). On Cape Cod 85% of the drinking water comes 85% comes from public drinking water wells and 15% from private wells.

My name is Brandi Crawford- Johnson and I am an EJ Advocate located in Michigan. Today I spoke on wanting EPA, ATSDR, EGLE and MDHHS to work at a faster pace to bring justice as it relates to a public health emergency in Kalamazoo, Michigan and other EJ communities in Southwest Michigan. Most counties in Southwest Michigan are graded "F" by the ALA and are communities with minorities or low-income residents. I researched all of the cities located within the counties and most communities all have EJ scores above 70%! These communities need air monitors installed on the streets where residents live and go to school right now. They need health monitoring vans to check for asthma and cancers right now. The EPA should take over enforcement for EGLE because all of the polluters that are out of compliance like Graphic Packaging, are still getting permits to expand and further hurt the health of residents in Kalamazoo's frontline community. EGLE aka MDEQ has a history of working for polluters instead of the residents harmed by them. We need the EPA to send out education materials to the public so they can understand environmental justice and how to look up the EJ Tool to see their risks. We should have EJ advocates working for states that actually have EJ backgrounds. For example, Michigan's EJ coordinator has a background in marketing and public relations for corporate polluters. The EJ coordinator, Regina Strong would be on the side of polluters, not the suffering residents. I believe that is why she won't return our calls or emails. I would like NEJAC to recommend that the EPA put our health first in Environmental Justice communities. To put in more action and less talk so that lives can be saved now! Thank you, Brandi Crawford-Johnson, EJ Advocate, Michigan

Hello,

I am writing to pass along a comment to the EPA's National Environmental Justice Advisory Council on behalf of the Stop the Money Pipeline coalition. Please find the comment below my signature. Best, Sulakshana

The Stop the Money Pipeline coalition is made up of more than 150 organizations. Together, we seek to end the financing of fossil fuels and deforestation and demand that financial institutions respect human rights and Indigenous sovereignty. Our goal is to highlight the responsibility of the financial industry to transition our economy away from fossil fuel disaster and toward a just, regenerative economy. U.S. banks, insurance companies, and asset managers are the world's largest financiers of the corporations driving climate chaos. To tackle the climate crisis in the US and globally, President Biden must ensure that all U.S. financial institutions are firmly on a path to real zero greenhouse gas emissions. This will require that every regulatory agency and department is staffed by strong, pro-climate and environmental justice leaders who make eliminating climate risk a central part of their agendas. Although there have been steps in the right direction, big financial institutions are continuing to invest, insure, and finance fossil fuel expansion with no end in sight. For example, Wall Street banks have financed Enbridge, the company behind the Line 3 pipeline, to the tune of billions of dollars since 2016. Stop the Money Pipeline has been organizing in solidarity with Indigenous land defenders to call on banks to stop financing this destructive project. The Line 3 so-called "replacement" project is a proposal for a new pipeline that would cover more than 1,000 miles from Hardisty, Alberta to Superior, Wisconsin, transporting an average of 760,000 barrels of tar sands crude oil from Alberta each day, with a capacity of 844,000 barrels per day. Despite ongoing legal challenges from the Red Lake Nation, the White Earth Band of Ojibwe, and Mille Lacs Band of Ojibwe, Minnesota's own Department of Commerce, environmental organizations, and 13 brave youth intervenors, construction on Line 3 continues. Line 3 is just one example of many fossil fuel projects that are being proposed globally, with the backing of US dollars. We have several recommendations for the Biden Administration to accelerate a just transition in our financial system:

1. Require financial institutions to phase out financing for fossil fuels and deforestation. Mandate banks and other financial institutions implement plans to phase out investments in fossil fuel or deforestation-causing commodities or businesses on a timeline consistent with science-based targets and prohibit financial institutions from directly owning these assets.
2. End all public money for corporations engaged in fossil fuels and deforestation. The Federal Reserve and public financing agencies, such as the US Export-Import Bank and the US International Development Finance Corporation, must wind down existing fossil fuel exposure to zero in a responsible way consistent with science-based climate targets.

3. Invest in Black, Brown, and Indigenous communities, remedy past harms, and promote a clean, just transition for workers in the fossil fuel sector and frontline communities. Study and design a public investment authority to offer long-term investment in communities for green infrastructure, without a profit or revenue requirement, and housing projects that create good union jobs with targeted hiring of local frontline communities. Study and design a program for making reparative payments and investments to frontline communities to remedy past harms.

4. Hold all firms accountable to respecting Tribal Nations' treaty and sovereignty rights. Ensure that banks and other financial institutions cannot proceed with financing projects that will impact a tribal community without the Free, Prior, and Informed Consent of the Tribal Nation(s) concerned. Uphold and honor Tribal Nations' treaty rights. Sulakshana (she/her), Energy Finance Campaigner, Rainforest Action Network

Following my testimony at the last NEJAC meeting on this issue, I was asked by the Social & Environment Action Committee at a local church to develop a series of articles on the "Challenges Facing the Cape Cod Aquifer". I have included a draft of my piece on toxic chemicals. I was inspired by your advisory committee to take on this daunting task by a grassroots environmental activist/retired marine scientist. I wish you success on your upcoming meeting evaluating the report to include EJ components in EPA's Superfund program. I used to live in Slidell, La. where we faced challenges from a waste-to-energy incinerator in a black community in the town. This project was defeated by a citizen's coalition of environmentalist and community members. In addition, I have been acting as a Senior Advisor to the Sierra Club- Cape Cod Group which is concerned about toxic contamination of the Upper Cape Cod Water Reserve from the Army National Guard's proposed multipurpose machine gun range at Camp Edwards. I have been engaged in the Safe Drinking Water Act/Superfund cleanup at Joint Base Cape Cod, since the late 1980's. The Ashumet Valley Plume (AVP) from JBCC lies underneath the Yearling Meadows where I live in East Falmouth, Ma. The AVP has contaminated public and private drinking water wells in Falmouth and Mashpee with PFOS and PFOA at levels exceeding 70 parts per trillion. More recently Massa. DEP implemented a maximum contaminant level of 20 ppt for the sum of 6 PFAS chemicals and made this the groundwater monitoring target for the CS-23 plume at JBCC. Draft Installment 4: Challenges Facing the Cape Cod Aquifer: Toxic Chemicals. Recently I was drafting comments on the Town of Falmouth Notice Project Change 3 Comprehensive Watershed Management Plan for reducing. "Nitrogen loading" from septic systems. Since Ma. DEP had recently issued a drinking water maximum contaminant level (mcl) of 20 parts per trillion for the sum of 6 perfluorinated chemicals (PFOS, PFOA, PFNA, PFDA, PFHpA and PFHxS), I felt that it made sense to integrate town efforts to reduce nutrient and toxic chemical chemicals in both drinking water and grey/black wastewater. As part of this process I checked the Environment Working Group (EWG) website for the toxic chemicals in Slidell, La. (where I used to live) with Falmouth, Ma. I was surprised to find that Falmouth drinking waters roughly 75% more toxic chemicals in its groundwater drinking water sources than Slidell (in spite of oil/gas extraction and waste disposal in the latter). Much of the focus on PFAS contamination of our public and private drinking water wells in Falmouth is from the Ashumet Valley Plume (AVP) from Joint Base Cape

Cod (JBCC). The AVP has three sources: former Fire training Area where AFFF firefighting foam was utilized; former wastewater treatment plant (wwtp) & water/sediments of Ashumet Pond. This plume contaminated public and private drinking water wells in Falmouth and Mashpee. The Air Force Civil Engineering Center (AFCEC) provided Granular Activated Carbon (GAC) filters to the owners of wells contaminated by PFOA/PFOS at concentrations exceeding 70 ppt (EPA Hazard level). In more recent times, the Superfund/Safe Drinking Water Act cleanup at JBCC has adopted the State mcl for 6 PFAS chemicals in its list of contaminants of concern. The University of Rhode Island STEEP (Sources, Transport, Exposure and Effects of PFAS) grant monitors > 25 PFAS chemicals in private drinking water wells throughout Cape Cod. STEEP grant research has found PFAS chemicals in the ground and surface waters of Cape Cod watersheds where no AFFF have been utilized, so that septic systems, landfills, wwtp effluent discharges might be additional sources of PFAS contamination. PFAS exposure also comes from food and articles in people's homes (i.e. stain and water-resistant fabrics). I recently requested EPA's National Environmental Justice Advisory Committee (NEJAC) to request that EPA Region 1 monitor PFAS levels in finfish and shellfish in Ashumet Pond and Waquoit Bay. Ashumet Pond already has periodic food consumption alerts for sensitive populations (women of childbearing age and kids; adults with pre-existing conditions and Mashpee Wampanoag tribal members who hunt and fish in this region) for methyl mercury. In this situation atmospheric mercury gets methylated by sulfide bacteria in anaerobic sediments and bioaccumulates in the aquatic food chain (with the highest concentrations in predacious fish species). Since PFOS and PFOA are soluble in both water and oil, their bioaccumulation pathway differs and is being explored by STEEP scientists. Perchlorate is another toxic chemical found in Falmouth's drinking water and comes from flares and fireworks sources at JBCC and elsewhere. It can be removed by ion exchange resins from contaminated groundwater to meet the Ma. DEP mcl of 2 parts per billion. Another recent addition to the contaminants of concern at JBCC is 1,4-dioxane which has an mcl of 2 ppb in New York. You will note that toxic contaminants exert adverse health effects at part per billion or part per trillion levels, whereas nitrates are harmful at 5-10 parts per million concentrations (a million times higher). Total Nitrogen reduction Targets in West Falmouth Harbor to avoid eutrophication effects are 0.35 ppm which is also lower than the acceptable PFAS levels in ground/surface waters used for drinking water. The Sierra Club's national Toxics Team has a number of fact sheets on PFAS challenges. The ENGOs working on toxic chemicals in our local drinking water include: GreenCape; Massachusetts Breast Cancer Coalition; Protect Our Cape Cod Aquifer; Sierra Club- Cape Cod Group; etc. Many of these groups oppose Eversource spraying of herbicides along power line rights of way for vegetation management. Many homeowners use herbicides to maintain weed free lawns, since they view themselves as suburbanites and not residents of the near country like I do. We are fortunate on the Cape that Barnstable County does not conduct airborne insecticide spraying to control mosquitoes in the Summer. Bourne has PFAS chemicals in its groundwater from use of AFFF foams from two traffic accidents near the Otis Rotary (this may contaminate mussels in Buzzards Bay embayments). URI STEEP research as shown PFAS chemicals in seabirds out on the Stellwagen Bank National Marine Sanctuary which suggest that aerial exposure is a pathway. Thus like "N" pollution of our groundwater, PFAS contamination may come from both point (end of pipe) and non-point (diffuse locales) sources. This greatly complicates regulation and cleanup by eliminating source areas and mitigating contaminated groundwater/surface drinking water sources. How do we eliminate PFAS chemicals in soil and sediment source areas given the uncertainty on how effective incineration methods are? GAC and reverse osmosis's filters in homes can reduce PFAS levels in drinking water, but how do we address contaminated GAC filters or RO water concentrates? Are there any safe levels of PFAS chemicals as a class of > 9000 isomers? Effectiveness of essential use approach in eliminating PFAS chemicals as a class. Most US residents have PFAS chemicals in their tissues and blood stream which has been related to number of adverse health effects (including reduced effectiveness of the immune system). The URI STEEP grant monthly webinar series cover many of these topics. US EPA has left regulation of PFAS chemicals up to the states. EPA is still working on developing an mcl for perchlorate in drinking water, so this slow process occurred prior to the Trump/Pence Administration. References: 1. Chairperson Sylvia Orduño

National Environmental Justice Advisory Council
Office of Environmental Justice
U.S. Environmental Protection Agency [Mail Code 2201A]

Dear Chair Orduño and Members of the National Environmental Justice Advisory Council:

This letter urges the National Environmental Justice Advisory Council (“NEJAC”) to help protect chemically overburdened communities by becoming involved in the chemical risk evaluation process under the Toxic Substances Control Act (“TSCA”). In 2016, Congress amended a largely ineffective TSCA and established a new mandatory process to systematically evaluate and manage chemical risks. We believe that if the new statute were implemented correctly, it could provide important benefits for communities and populations that are most exposed or most susceptible to toxic chemicals. However, EPA’s implementation of the risk evaluation process so far has violated the letter and spirit of the law. For this reason, we ask the National Environmental Justice Advisory Council to issue a statement urging EPA to identify and consider the impact of chemicals on all potentially exposed and susceptible subpopulations at each stage of the risk evaluation process and to form an internal TSCA working group to ensure constant communication with EPA.

1. TSCA mandates a comprehensive review of a chemical’s exposures and risks.

The risk evaluation process has three steps. Step one is prioritization, where EPA chooses batches of “high-priority” chemicals. 15 U.S.C. § 2605(b)(1)(B)(i). Step two is risk evaluation, during which EPA comprehensively evaluates a chemical’s exposures and risks and determines whether the chemical substance presents or will present an unreasonable risk of injury, without consideration of costs. 15 U.S.C. § 2605(b)(4)(A). The final step is risk management, which requires EPA to impose restrictions to eliminate unreasonable risk. 15 U.S.C. § 2605(c).

EPA was required to skip over the lengthy prioritization phase for the first ten chemicals set for evaluation, which the Agency selected without a transparent process. The risk evaluations for these first ten chemicals have now been completed, and EPA will soon develop rules to address the chemical risks it identified for these chemicals through the risk management process. EPA is also in the early stages of “step two,” risk evaluation, for twenty high-priority chemicals it selected in late 2019.

For each chemical evaluated, TSCA requires EPA to consider risks across the chemical’s life cycle. This includes all known or foreseeable conditions of use, including manufacture, processing, distribution, use, disposal, and even after initial disposal if the chemical is still resulting in exposure. This lifecycle-based review reflects TSCA's comprehensive approach to chemical risk management that considers the full extent of human or environmental exposure, including risks from chemical exposures that are or could be regulated under other laws. Further, EPA must separately consider risks to "potentially exposed or susceptible subpopulations," or groups that "due to either greater susceptibility or greater exposure" may face greater risks of harm than the general population from chemical exposures. 15 U.S.C. §§ 2605(b)(1)(A), 2602(12). If these subpopulations face unreasonable risk, EPA must regulate those risks, even if the risk to the general population is not unreasonable.

2. Current TSCA implementation ignores chemically overburdened communities.

Unfortunately, recent EPA determinations highlight that the agency is not living up to the mandates of TSCA, to the detriment of communities and groups who experience high exposure to toxic chemicals. As required by TSCA, EPA released "draft scopes" for the twenty chemicals it designated as high-priority. These draft scopes are required to outline the factors EPA intends to consider when conducting risk evaluations. 15 U.S.C. § 2605(b)(4)(D). However, EPA did not properly identify the potentially exposed or susceptible subpopulations it expects to consider. Instead, EPA ignored the heightened exposure of the communities located in geographic proximity to high-volume chemical facilities, particularly communities in highly industrial regions, including: the Greater Houston area; Port Arthur, Texas; Mossville, Louisiana and neighboring towns; and communities along the Mississippi River between Baton Rouge and New Orleans in the area known as Cancer Alley. Further information about how this lack of analysis is a detriment to these communities can be found at "Comments on Draft Scopes of the Risk Evaluations for the First Twenty High-Priority Substances under the Toxic Substances Control Act."¹ EPA also did not properly identify the potentially exposed or susceptible subpopulations it expects to consider in many of its completed risk evaluations, which can have a negative impact on how EPA will address the risks to exposed communities as the Agency transitions to developing risk management rules.

3. The NEJAC should support chemically overburdened communities by urging proper implementation of TSCA.

EPA continues to make determinations under TSCA that are not protective of human health, or the communities most greatly affected by toxic chemicals. We are asking that NEJAC work with us to make sure that EPA lives up to the mandates of TSCA. We ask that NEJAC:

- 1) Advise EPA to consider all the risks of the chemicals it evaluates under TSCA by identifying all potentially exposed and susceptible subpopulations and conducting separate analyses to determine if these chemicals pose an unreasonable risk to these groups at the risk evaluation stage and considering the greater risks fenceline communities face as the Agency develops risk management rules.

- 2) We strongly urge NEJAC to meet regularly with EPA's Office of Chemical Safety and Pollution Prevention and to form an internal TSCA working group to ensure constant communication with EPA and provide opportunities for strategic implementation of environmental justice throughout all stages of the risk evaluation process.

We also offer our team as a resource to the NEJAC related to any TSCA risk evaluation issues.

Passaic River Cleanup Plan: A Formula for Failure

Ms. Salkie:

We are writing you in response to the proposed cleanup plan for the Passaic River. As you know, since 2007, there have been numerous plans proposed for the cleanup of the Passaic River, with little to no action of actual cleanup. And now, rather than deal with the real problem, which is contaminants that impact the prolonged health and economic / social vitality of surrounding communities, a plan is proposed to bury harmful pollutants. Burying contaminants means those contaminants remain a health risk for current and future generations. There is no escaping the reality that decisions to build containment storage facilities are toxic "time-bombs". They wear-out and fail. The EPA's files are full of catastrophic failures in the manner of the Kingston and Dan River pond failures, and the flooding of the San Jacinto River Waste Pits in Houston due to Hurricane Harvey, to name only a few. Even more recently, in Florida, the toxic wastewater reservoir nearly collapsed and narrowly caused another "catastrophic event" in Tampa Bay.

The idea that burying contaminated materials/waste, hoping there is not a health crisis, is irresponsible. Anything buried, eventually becomes un-buried. Mitigating health risks today for future health risks tomorrow would ordinarily seem unwise, unless it impacts the parts of our society that are the least able to fight back. For example, the contaminants released upon the community of Kingston, TN, due to a spill, were shipped to the Arrowhead landfill near Uniontown, Alabama, a predominately African-American community. This community, like many other minority communities, face the possibility of health risks due to a contaminated waste storage facility failure, often impacting the groundwater or presenting other health challenges.

And now the EPA wants to bury contaminants again, either in the Passaic River or ship them off-site. This plan is in disregard to the EPA's own Environmental Justice mandates, the April 30th Memorandum on Strengthening Enforcement in Communities with Environmental Justice Concerns⁽¹⁾ and the manner by which cleanup plans are selected, established under the EPA's CERCLA regulations, Clean Up Standards (Sec. 121):

"Remedial actions which treatment which permanently and significantly reduces the volume, toxicity, or mobility of the hazardous substances, pollutants, and contaminants is a principal element, are to be preferred over remedial actions not involving such treatment. The offsite transport and disposal of hazardous substances or contaminated materials without such treatment would be the least favored alternative remedial action where practical treatment technologies are available."

- (1) Increase opportunities for community engagement in the development of cleanup and reuse agreements to ensure community concerns are addressed in a meaningful manner.

The storage of contaminants within or near a community, labels that community as not-worthy of the protections granted other, perhaps wealthier communities. The EPA's decision to consistently ignore its own mandates tells America's minority and impoverished communities that America values you less. Even the EPA concluded in Uniontown, Alabama that after 4 million cubic yards of toxic waste from Tennessee was dumped in their backyard, there was "insufficient evidence" that the resident's Civil Rights were violated.

The Passaic River has been a contaminated waste dump for decades. Plans for a clean-up date back to 2007. And today, the best cleanup solution the EPA can come up with is violating its own mandates and burying the contaminants in the river or hauling them off to likely another minority community where they will be stored as a future health risk.

This would not be so frustrating were it not for the fact that an alternative toxic waste solution does - and has existed. That alternative is a technology developed at the behest of the EPA and the US Army Corps of Engineers. It is a technology that conforms to the EPA's mandates by permanently destroying the toxicity of contaminated materials and convert those materials to a non-hazardous building product, with commercial value called "Ecomelt". This treatment process of contaminants is in compliance with the EPA's Environmental Justice mandates and instead of being a blight on poor communities, this process can be used to rebuild and create value in those same communities.

Of course, you know I am speaking of the Cement Lock technology. An innovative technology that has been brought before the EPA many times before and endorsed by reputable 3rd Party organizations. It fulfills the EPA's strategic goals by being a PERMANENT solution that treats toxic materials in our environment because it significantly reduces the volume, toxicity, or mobility of the hazardous substances. The Cement Lock technology has been recommended to the EPA as a cleanup solution for the Passaic River by the National Advisory Council for Environmental Policy and Technology, NACEPT (February 12, 2012). It was recommended again by the Passaic River Coalition (November 14, 2012). Even James Woolford, the EPA Director of Office of Superfund Remediation and Technology Innovation told Volcano Partners that his staff had reviewed the Cement Lock technology and found it to be mature, having completed full-scale demonstrations as well as commercial applications (July 31, 2018).

Carbon Capture

Concrete is the world's most widely used building material. Cement accounts for 7% of all CO₂ emissions. If cement manufacturing were a country, it would be the third-largest carbon emitter in the world, behind the U.S. and China. In the quest for innovation, Volcano Partners and its engineering firm, Wood, have introduced the ability to reduce Greenhouse Gases (GHG) with a new "carbon capture" technology as part of the Cement Lock process. With the production of Ecomelt from Superfund material, CO₂ is captured and commercially re-introduced to industry for food preservation, carbonated drinks, refrigeration, etc. As a result, for every cubic yard of Ecomelt that is manufactured, one cubic yard of cement production is eliminated along with the GHG that would otherwise have been produced.

So why is the EPA leaning towards a cleanup plan that is about as antiquated as might be possible? Why does the EPA have an Office of Technology Innovation when in 2021 the EPA wants to bury toxic material, as it was similarly done 50-years ago? It would seem the calls for "innovation in the field of hazardous waste management have fallen upon deaf ears".

The polluters, per CERCLA, are liable for the full and total costs of response and damages. And as long as there is buried toxic material, there is liability and health risks to many minority neighborhoods in New Jersey from future exposure. Perhaps it is time that those responsible for the pollution of the Passaic River are held accountable. There are also "Orphan" sites under the control of government agencies that have liability and must be addressed at the tax-payers expense.

It should be noted that besides permanently extinguishing the risk of future health risks, the Cement Lock process is also an economical alternative since toxic substances are converted to building materials and available in commerce at a lower cost than similar products, thereby reducing treatment costs.

As always, I remain available to meet with you and others responsible for the enactment of the Passaic River Cleanup Plan. We would hope that the EPA would consider their own cleanup mandates with a focus on how adhering to such mandates would benefit minority communities and put an end to the environmental racism that has been allowed to flourish under past waste management practices.

Regards.

RE: Comments Submitted to the White House Environmental Justice Advisory Council Regarding Steps to Achieve Environmental Justice in the Superfund Program

Dear WHEJAC Members:

As a long-time observer and independent evaluator of the Superfund program who has authored many reports evaluating the Superfund program,¹ I am submitting recommendations that, if implemented, would help to ensure that contaminated sites located in environmental justice (EJ) communities are identified and remediated in a timely fashion and protect the health and well-being of vulnerable communities. There are over 1,300 sites currently on the Superfund National Priorities List (NPL). The vast majority of these sites have been on the NPL for more than 20 years and there are many sites still on the NPL that were listed in the 1980s. From nine to 19% of current NPL sites present a current risk to human health.² The current risk to human health at NPL sites is an issue that has received scant attention.

The recommendations below fall into three categories: (1) the need for Congress and EPA to address a huge gap in the Superfund law, the fact that the law (and therefore the program) does not provide resources or actions to address the negative health impacts to those living and working near Superfund sites that are the result of years (and in some cases decades) of exposure to toxic chemicals; (2) specific actions EPA can take now to accelerate cleanup and reduce current risks at contaminated sites in EJ communities, and (3) supporting actions that are needed to make NPL site cleanups more efficient and improve EPA accountability.

I would note that the recommendations below are mine, and mine alone, and do not represent any particular group or perspective. If any of these suggestions are of interest, I would be happy to speak with WHEJAC members about them.

Sincerely,

Katherine N. Probst

¹ I was the lead author of the 2001 Report to Congress Superfund's Future: What Will it Cost and, more recently, Superfund at 40: Unfulfilled Expectations. For a full list of my publications see www.kateprobstconsulting.com.

² As of April 22, 2021, according to EPA data, there are 122 current NPL sites where human exposure is not under control, and another 127 current NPL sites where there is 'insufficient data' to determine if human exposure is under control out of a total of 1,327 final sites on the NPL.

Recommendations for Improving Superfund to Ensure Environmental Justice

1. Address the Gaping Hole in Superfund: Public Health Impacts from Past Exposure.

Much of the external attention to Superfund focuses on whether the law is being implemented successfully, whether the program is adequately funded, and whether potentially responsible parties (PRPs) are being held responsible. Unfortunately, there is a gaping hole in the law, and therefore in the program, that needs to be addressed. The main focus of CERCLA is to remediate contamination and hold PRPs responsible. The program prevents additional risk by cutting the route of exposure and remediating a site. However, there is no provision in the law to address the health impacts of years or even decades of exposure to lead, mercury, TCE, PCBs and other toxic chemicals, exposure that occurred before EPA (or a state) became involved and took action to reduce or eliminate routes of exposure. An excellent report by the Shriver Center on Poverty Law and Earth Justice, Poisonous Homes: The Fight for Environmental Justice in Federally Assisted Housing, provides an assessment of this issue.³

In order to protect residents living near Superfund sites, this gap needs to be investigated and addressed. It is likely to be of particular importance to those who do not have health insurance and thus cannot get needed health care; even those with health insurance could have out of pocket costs resulting from past exposure. There is only one site where legislation was passed to that provided health screening and access to health insurance, the Libby site in Montana. In 2009, for the first and only time in Superfund's history, a public health emergency was declared.⁴ The Libby site provides an interesting model worth evaluating to determine if this approach should be more widely employed.

Some preliminary thoughts on steps EPA could take to create a strategy for investigating this issue:

- a. Conduct a case study of the use of the "public health emergency" provision to provide medical care and insurance at the Libby site, including evaluating the degree to which the original goals were achieved, the costs of the program, its strengths and weaknesses and "lessons learned."
- b. Work with ATSDR to produce a report that synthesizes information for NPL sites on what is known about the negative health impacts from "past exposure" (before EPA, State or PRP action to cut routes of exposure) to those working and living on, or near, NPL sites from exposure to toxic chemicals and the likely or possible resulting long-term health effects.
- c. Evaluate the programs conducted by ATSDR under Section 110 of CERCLA and make recommendations for how these programs could be improved.

- d. Gather information on affected residents' access to health care and health insurance.
- e. Explore whether the costs of health screening and health care should be included in the definition of "response costs" and thus be eligible for EPA funding and/or paid for, and recoverable from, PRPs, as suggested by the aforementioned Shriver Center and Earth Justice report.

2. Address Current Health Risks and Accelerate Cleanups at NPL Sites in EJ Communities^{*}

A. Reduce or Eliminate Current Risks at NPL Sites in EJ Communities.

- EPA should review all NPL/EJ sites where human exposure is not under control and identify what action could be taken to address the route of concern and/or to reduce possible human exposure. Such actions should be implemented expeditiously by EPA or responsible parties.
- EPA should review all NPL/EJ sites where there is "insufficient data" to determine whether human exposure is under control and identify what actions are needed to determine whether there are current routes of exposure, and, if there are, what actions could be taken to address the route of concern and/or to reduce possible human exposure. Such actions should be implemented expeditiously by EPA or responsible parties.
- EPA should greatly reduce the use of the "insufficient data" category and require that no site be in this category for more than six months, so that affected residents and workers will have a clear idea of whether a site does, or does not, present a current health risk.

B. Identify and Address Barriers to Cleanup

- Immediately request supplemental funding of $200-$600 million for the Superfund program for the current fiscal year to speed cleanups and address critical needs. At the end of FY 2019, there were 34 NPL sites with construction projects ready to go that could not be funded by EPA. While the majority of supplemental funding should go to remedial actions that were delayed due to lack of EPA funding, some of these funds should go to increasing the removal budget to address current risks, Superfund enforcement to hold PRPs accountable, and reaching out to EJ communities to improve communication and to identify sites in need of federal attention.
- Initiate a 45-day review of the funding and enforcement status of those NPL sites in EJ communities that have been on the NPL for 10 years or more but are still not "Construction Complete," (i.e., the remedies at the site have not been fully implemented). This review should identify what is holding up progress at these sites and what specific actions are needed to speed cleanup at each of these sites.

^{*} A definition of EJ communities is, of course, needed to implement many of those recommendations.

whether that be additional EPA funds, more aggressive enforcement action, or some other action. This review should address all actions at NPL sites, that is, actions implemented by both EPA and PRPs.

- Shine a light on PRP inaction and delay. EPA should review all NPL sites to identify those sites where PRP inaction or unwillingness to enter into a settlement agreement has delayed cleanup for a year or more. EPA should set a strict new policy for bringing enforcement action when PRPs delay cleanup. Sites in EJ communities should be identified.

C. Reach out to identify Sites in EJ Communities that Need Federal Attention.

- EPA leadership should ask representatives of EJ communities and organizations, EPA regions, and State agencies to identify any contaminated sites that they believe need a removal action or that should be considered for NPL listing. EPA needs to aggressively reach out to EJ communities to identify, evaluate and address the risks at these sites and whether some kind of EPA action is warranted.

3. Improve Overall Program Management and Public Accountability

- Announce a commitment to a more robust focus on Environmental Justice for Superfund and the creation of a new Superfund EJ initiative. The first step, of course, is to reach out to EJ communities and NGOs working on EJ issues to hear directly what a new EJ initiative for Superfund should look like and how it should be structured. Key Superfund EJ issues are likely to include much more proactive communication by EPA about the risks at Superfund sites, increasing the availability of Technical Assistance Grants, reviewing the role of ATSDR in public health assessments and exposure investigations, ensuring that sites in EJ communities receive needed cleanup and enforcement resources and attention, among other issues. While the work of EPA's National Environmental Justice Advisory Council on Superfund, which is nearing completion, is likely to be a helpful starting point, it is not a substitute for this initiative and its charge did not include some of the key challenges facing the Superfund program.
- Estimate future Superfund funding needs. It is well-documented that the Superfund program is under-funded, which delays cleanups and hampers enforcement. EPA has not made public an estimate of future program funding needs for decades, yet adequate funding is critical to program success. EPA should produce a "ballpark" estimate of future funding needs in the next few months. After this initial estimate, EPA should develop an annual estimate of the future funding needs for all aspects of the program, including enforcement, and this estimate should be made public and provided to Congress as input to the annual budget and oversight process, as was done in the early years of the program.
- Create metrics to track program and enforcement accomplishments and make the metrics and the results public. For many years, there has been little public information that can be used to hold the Agency accountable for timely and effective cleanup and enforcement. The Agency needs to develop meaningful measures of success and return to making this information public. There have been myriad external reports that make recommendations for the need for improved data, analysis, and transparency. While developing useful metrics is difficult, this is a critical element to ensure that the public and Congress can hold EPA accountable for achieving results.

Abstract

From movements for civil rights in the 1960s and environmental protection in the 1970s, the environmental justice movement emerged in the 1980s and 1990s to highlight the disparate impacts of pollution, principally upon people of color and low-income communities. Over time, the scope of environmental justice expanded to address concerns for other dimensions of diversity. New and continuing challenges tell us that we need to reframe our understanding of environmental justice to ensure better protection for people going forward. One way to reframe this understanding may be to apply the heuristic of vulnerability analysis as proposed by legal theorist Martha Fineman and subsequent scholars. Starting from recognition that vulnerability is inherent in the human condition, vulnerability theory has already been explored in a variety of contexts but has yet to be fully investigated as a means for reframing environmental justice for future application. This article urges further consideration of vulnerability theory in the environmental justice context. It specifically proposes a new definition of "environmental justice" to incorporate vulnerability theory in order to assist policymakers and community advocates with identifying the people most at risk from environmental hazards and most in need of attention to protect their health and safety.

May 3, 2021

Dear President Biden and administration,

In December 2020, a diverse coalition more than 650 organizations launched the Presidential Plastics Action Plan outlining the eight executive actions President Biden can take, without Congress, to fight the plastic pollution crisis. The full plan is attached to this document.

Today, we are delivering over 100,000 petition signatures demanding President Biden and the administration take bold actions on plastics. The petition signatures and personal notes are attached.

Plastic pollution kills. It poisons our air and water and gets into our bodies.

Plastic will soon outweigh all the fish in the sea and it's in our drinking water and on our plates. Yet the fossil fuel industry plans to increase plastic production by 40% over the next decade.

President Biden can, and must, act on plastic pollution. We must stop producing more plastic and transform our throwaway economy to a regenerative one.

We demand President Biden take bold action on plastic pollution and be a #PlasticFreePresident.

We look forward to hearing how your administration will plan on addressing the plastic pollution crisis.

Sincerely,

#PlasticFreePresident Organizational Partners

President Biden can, and must, act on plastic pollution. We must stop producing more plastic and transform our throwaway economy to a regenerative one.

We demand President Biden take bold action on plastic pollution and be a #PlasticFreePresident.

Individual messages the petition signers added:

"We are part of a third grade class at High Peaks Elementary School in Boulder, Colorado. Our class is studying climate change. Our group has been learning how pollution and climate are effecting the marine biome. We are very concerned about the rising oceans, oil spills and plastic pollution.

Our biggest concern is how plastic is effecting the plants and animals in our oceans, the people living in coastal communities and the people living near where plastics are being produced. We have learned that there are 5.25 trillion macro and micro pieces of plastic in our oceans. We also learned that about 8 million pieces of plastic make their way into our oceans every day! We have seen your website about the 8 solutions that you are proposing to President Biden. We very much appreciate the hard work you are doing in your organization to encourage the president to make laws that will help stop the use and pollution of so much plastic. We would like you to let President Biden know that our class from High Peaks Elementary in Boulder, Colorado would like to add our name in support of your group in asking him to make new policies concerning plastic production, use and disposal.

We know that when we all work together great things can be accomplished. Thank you so much for taking such amazing action in helping our planet survive!" – 3rd grade Marine Biome Group, High Peaks Elementary

"As a long-time fellow Rehoboth/Dewey Beach summertime resident. I am so saddened to see the plastic litter that coats the sand and enters the water and helps destroy our ocean. If companies can make rockets that go to the moon and can fast-track making vaccines, they should be able to come up with a biodegradable solution to our overwhelming plastic problem." – Diana Lahey, Great Falls, VA 22066

"As a marine biologist I am especially concerned about the effect's plastics are having on marine life. It is important to reduce the single use plastics we use - and that needs to be done at the beginning of the supply chain."—Judith Weis, New York, NY 10023

"As a person who works with children and hopes to have a family of her own, I am very concerned about the climate crisis. I want future generations to enjoy the incredible natural world around us and I do not want people to suffer due to climate change. Plastic pollution is a huge part of the problem and we can do something about it!"—Sarah Bentley Allred, Wake Forest, NC, 27587

"As a polymer chemist with 30 years experience in synthesizing and analyzing plastics, I understand the dangers of plastic pollution. These materials do not degrade into harmless chemicals. Instead, they stay indefinitely and pollute our air, lands, crops and waters. They endanger animals who ingest them and become entangled in them. On this very afternoon, a friend and I attempted to remove all of the plastic litter from a small area of a local creek. We filled two huge garbage bags in a little over an hour. We frequently clean the creeks and lands in our town, and the main source of pollution in them is made of plastics. I am horrified because I belong to the "boomer" generation, who was raised on the Pacific coast and in the desert, and never experienced plastic pollution. Those were the good old days before corporations manufactured disposables made of plastic. Please help stop our throwaway plastic society from doing more damage."—Debra Dunson, Spring Hill, TN 37174

"As a Scoutmaster, I hike and paddle and swim and camp in many natural areas, and not one of them is free of plastic pollution. The riverbanks and seashores, the meadows and forests, and the campgrounds and parks are all battling this plastic pollution. I was scuba diving in the Florida Keys in Islamorada with my Scouts and we saw first-hand all the plastic that has inundated the mangroves along the shoreline. It is beyond heartbreaking.

Please help solve this crisis. Be the Environment President!"—Stephen Lewis, South Windsor, CT 06074

"As a wildlife veterinarian I am constantly seeing the impact plastic waste has on animals. In the oceans they appear similar to food items and are commonly found in the digestive tracts of stranded animals and frequently lead to death. We MUST reduce our dependence on plastics. Plastic kills."—Donna Craig, Melbourne, FL 32934

"As a young person, this issue is important to me. I hate seeing plastic destroying our planet while big companies push the blame onto consumers. I want to see action so I can live on a healthy planet."—Victoria Bogatz, Bellevue, NE 68123

"As an 80 year old woman, I have watched the proliferation of plastic into all areas of our lives with amazement and horror. It is impossible to get into and out of a grocery store without masses of it in your reusable bag. We have got to pay attention and stop this onslaught, which is happening in the name of convenience and cost effectiveness.”—Phyllis Castells, Whitehouse Station, NJ 08889

“As car companies turn to making EV's and we turn to clean energy sources, the fossil fuel industries will turn to making more plastic to offset their loss in these industries. This works against mitigating climate change and also further pollutes our land, air and water. I don't want to worry about how much plastic is in the food I eat or water I drink.”—Laurie Zunner, Albuquerque, NM 87112

“Chemicals in plastic are contaminating everything and possibly causing hormone disruption and other medical problems in people. As a health care provider, I ask you to reduce use of plastic.”—Robert Fuchs, Omaha, NE 68132

“Dear President Biden, there is so much plastic hat is ruining our planet and there is no way to avoid getting plastic when shopping whether for groceries or anything else. It is ruining and destroying our country and others. Please help put a stop to this with some sort of legislation to reduce or eliminate plastic. there must be other methods of packaging.”—Richard McGuire, Phoenix, AZ 85008

“Growing up on a farm where we didn't have trash pickup made the trash we generated visible and persistent. It has motivated me to minimize my trash my whole life. It is so important to especially reduce trash that is not biodegradable!”—Elizabeth Lobos, Concord, CA 94520

“Hi I am a natural resource management and sustainability major at Paul Smiths college in the ADK! The environment is my workspace. It's where I have class it's where I do work it's where I feel most comfortable. Plastic pollution is among the most excessive and abundant of all pollution. Please help take the steps to stop this.”—David Andrew Anguzza, West Winfield, NY 13491

“I am a registered nurse and I care deeply about the health of all Americans and the health of our planet. We must end plastic pollution to improve the health of our waterways, wildlife, and all humans.”—Lucinda Cave, Lakewood, OH 44107

“I believe it is crucial that we start doing something to significantly reduce the plastic waste in this country and abroad. I worry about the devastating impact on our planet if we don't. We as a society cannot continue to pollute at this rate and expect our wildlife and planet to survive. I worry very much about the world that my children and grandchildren will inherit.”—Madeline Axler, Davie, FL 33325

“I have metastatic breast cancer from pollutants! I think that enough said about the dangers of plastics and chemicals in our soil and food chain!”—Debra Goodwin, Brookfield, CT 06804

#PLASTICFREEPRESIDENT

“I live in Florida and every day I walk the shoreline of the Hillsborough River, picking up plastic, styrofoam, bottle caps, and cigarette butts. Every high tide brings a fresh surge e of plastic. When I look closely, small and smaller bits of plastic film, Styrofoam and plastic wrappers are everywhere! Is this what we want to bequeath to our children and grandchildren? The birds eat the plastic trash, mistaking the glittering objects for food, and they die. It shames me that this is the gift of our civilization. C'mon, too much is more than enough!”—Andrew Rock, Tampa, FL 33603

“I live near the largest garbage waste facility in the Midwest. in southwest Ohio. The name of the facility is Rumpke. It is a family owned dump site that has been named as a “utility” by Ohio Supreme Court. We are subject to a lot of particulate air pollution because of constant churning of the site. Some of that debris is micro and airborne. Although they run a recycling facility, only a small percentage of plastic waste is ever recycled. We live with this pollution every day.”—Diane Bruegge, Cincinnati, OH 45252

“I spend a part of each summer removing plastic trash from beachfronts and dry riverbeds near my husband's ancestral home. I have been doing this for over forty years and it only gets worse. This pollution affects the life of sea creatures and life on land as well. If we do not bake ourselves into extinction then perhaps we will be smothered by plastic detritus in advance.”—Jacqueline Eliopoulos, Boulder, CO 80301

“I went walking in the Pt. Reyes National Seashore last weekend at a place called Abbots Lagoon. It looks like a gorgeous pristine sand dune ecosystem, birds, otters, crashing waves. It is a truly magical place and still I was able to fill all my pockets with small pieces of plastic that I found on a very short walk along the water line. I also had a handful of larger plastic pieces in my hand when I left. Its really tragic. What would it look like if this kind of pollution was considered in a plastic producers bottom line. Producing single use plastic would become a lot less profitable. Please, lets actually Build Back Better and address this unsustainable and damaging reliance on single use plastics.”—Christine Meuris, Berkeley, CA 94703

I work in National Parks and see the waste and micro trash. My parents live on the Atlantic Ocean and see it there. What if must be doing in landfills as we fell to the misleading ads of recycling plastic numbers, NOT. We need leadership.”—Alison Van Dusen, Indialantic, FL 32903

“I’m a mom and am concerned about the climate crisis and its impact on my children’s future. We all need to be making a greater effort to combat this crisis, and I think President Biden has a lot of power to change the tide for the better.”—Stella Kang, Buena Park, CA 90621

“In Hawaii our islands are surrounded by the ocean. We see firsthand the plastic products that wash up on our shores. So I collect them to throw away while walking on the beach. Imagine how much more is out there floating and deteriorating to become microplastics, wreaking havoc on our marine life and making their way into our bodies when we eat seafood. Mahalo nui loa for taking action against plastic use and production!”—Mary Kadooka, Honolulu HI 96817

“It is time that we move towards a circular economy in which we use products and containers that can be composted, recycled, or reused. Most plastic never makes it to the recycling bin. Plastic products prolong our dependence on fossil fuels that dirty our environment and contribute to climate change. The health of the planet is threatened by the microplastics polluting our waters. It is time to ask plastic manufacturers to be responsible for their actions and products. Please take action soon.”—Diane Klinefelter, Saint Paul, MN 55117

“It matters for so many reasons but for me and my family, it matters personally because 5 out of 7 of us now have compromised thyroids. We have no history of thyroid issues in our family history before now. It is my understanding that a type of thyroid damage can come from a type of plastic used in non-stick cooking ware which my mom, unknowingly used raising us.”—Beth Beebe, Chester CT 06412

“Living near the Georgia coast, I see the harm that discarded plastics are causing the ecosystem. The plastic items find their way into canals, drainage pipes, streams and then to the ocean. There, the unsuspecting sea creatures become entangled in them, ingest them, and ultimate die unnecessary deaths. Please help!”—Carol Anderson, Savannah, GA 31419

“My family and I, with our health conditions, cannot handle any more contamination of the air and water that comes with the fossil fuels used to produce plastic, or from the plastic polluting our waters.”—Angel Garcia, Bronx, NY 10455

“My family relies heavily on fish as a part of our diet. I am increasingly concerned about the microplastics that are massing in our oceans’ waters as plastics break apart after being exposed to sea water and sun and surf over the years. The fish we eat are ingesting this plastic, filtering it through their gills, and poisoning themselves. That poison is entering our bodies as we eat their meat, and I worry about the negative effects on our health. The plastics are hazards for other marine life, snaring and killing marine mammals, turtles, and birds. Plastic debris litters our landscapes, which unlike biodegradable litter, persists virtually forever. Other countries have banned plastic bags or charged for bags, why not us? Excessive plastic packaging fills our landfills.

In the past, biodegradable products such as paper, cardboard, cellophane sufficed. Why not now? Reusable pop bottles and milk jugs, why not now? Time to dump plastic for a better US and world.”—Marilyn Karim, Wheaton, IL 60187

“Our town is only recycling plastic bottles, all other plastic (and there is a lot of it) is shipped to a landfill. How much longer can this continue? As a farmer I have switched to compostable bags for my produce. Please help us eliminate plastic waste. Thank you.”—Janet Hicks, East Hampton, NY 11937

“President Biden, I live on the Russian River, and see the impact of plastic waste all the time. And what I see and can't reach ends up in the ocean, where it adds to an appalling spiral of plastic waste destroying ocean life. It is particularly frustrating that while recycling options decline, we allow plastic production to expand, particularly as a side product of fracked gas that is polluting our aquifers. Please help to stop this massive pollution.”—Clara Else, Guerneville, CA 95446

“President Biden, I'm especially interested in #2 below. A huge plastic processing facility is being proposed for the Ohio Valley. We need to stop this plant, and we need to make a start on getting rid of plastic and its pollution.”—Bill Bowman, Louisville KY 40205

“The burden on reducing plastic consumption can't all be on individual consumers, we need to address this problem of environmental degradation and plastic pollution and toxicity at the policy level and hold corporations accountable, not just by charging them fees that they just incorporate into the cost of doing business, but in a way that stops them from this business model in the first place.”—Danielle DeLuca, Dedham MA, 02026

“The pandemic has accentuated so many ways in which inequities and climate change threaten the greatness of our country. Your action on single-use plastics could help to address these huge problems.”—Melanie Loo, Sacramento, CA 95819

“The planet is being buried in plastic. Oil and gas see a great way to make money by producing more plastic. We must not allow that to happen. As plastic breaks down it endangers life on Earth via micro-plastics and toxins released.”—Janice Brown, Englewood, CO 80110

“The pollution from plastic production is harming human health, especially those who live in lower income communities. Plastics in packaging are ingested by humans and animals harming health. Plastic “disposal” is choking the planet. It all needs to stop.”—Elizabeth Ann Garner, Colorado Springs, CO 80908

“These 8 actions to halt and reverse the deadly impacts of plastic use and fossil fuel harvesting are incredibly important. As a young millennial, I have watched our earth burn and crumble and freeze, over and over, time and time again throughout my life, and this will only continue to get worse unless we take SERIOUS action, NOW. I don't want to lose the beauty of this incredible planet. It's a marvel. And I don't want living on it to become a nightmare for the entire world population, including animals. Please, please, please... We implore you. Take action now, before it's too late.”— Devon Carlson, Michigan City, IN 46360

“This measure is important to me as my Welsh born, immigrant grandfather died of black lung and as a Respiratory Therapist, I have treated many individuals with respiratory diseases many of which resulted from air pollution.”—James and Joanne Smoker, York, PA 17408

“Today I went hiking on a beautiful trail located in my local area and unfortunately was appalled with the large quantity of plastic discarded in the woods and in the adjacent river. Plastic which is not only ugly but harmful to wildlife and thus ultimately to human life. Also, plastic is adding to our climate crisis.”—Marilyn Williams, Cullman, AL 35055

“We are working very hard to make District of Columbia plastic free by enacting regulations for grocery bags and other items. There is need for a coordinated national policy to avoid trashing our waterways and endangering all wildlife.” – Hamid Karimi, Washington, DC 20003

“With two young children I know the urgency in protecting our planet for a future that is good. I want my girls to grow up in a world where we have made a decision to clean up our ways of being co-inhabitants. Please start cleaning up the plastic mess.” – Brian Flaigmore, Casper, WY 82609

Presidential Plastics Action Plan Introduction

Plastic production fuels the climate crisis with increased greenhouse gas emissions and damages local communities where plastic is made with toxic air and water pollution. Plastic is also a threat to human health: As we increasingly consume more and more of our food and drinks from single-use plastic wrappers and containers, we're exposed to chemicals linked to many of the known public health crises of our time, including obesity, ADD/ADHD, and many forms of cancer.

Once discarded, plastic clogs our rivers and oceans, harms wildlife, infiltrates our drinking water, and persists in the environment for centuries. Half of all plastics ever manufactured have been made in the last 15 years, and annual plastic pollution into rivers, lakes and oceans could surpass 50 million tons within the next 10 years unless significant policy changes are made. Banning bags and straws are important first steps taken by state and local governments, but we need bold new federal policies to address the plastic pollution crisis.

And despite false and misleading claims by the makers of plastics, we cannot recycle our way out of this problem. According to the United States Environmental Protection Agency, the U.S. plastic recycling rate is an anemic 8%. Instead, more than 90% of plastics in the United States is buried, burned or released into the environment.

The solution to plastic pollution is simple: Reduce the amount of unnecessary plastic produced.

We can transform our extractive, throwaway economy to a regenerative, inclusive one that's good for our environment and creates American jobs.

We need to stop plastic contamination at its source before it enters the marketplace, while improving our waste-management systems, developing new business models, phasing out the worst plastic offenders, and shifting to reusable non-plastic alternatives. The federal government needs to be a catalyst for innovation. There is time to make this transition, but the question remains:

How can we make this large-scale transition quickly enough?

President Biden can take the following eight key steps without any action from Congress. These actions will immediately set the nation on a pathway to a plastic pollution-free future while longer-term measures that require action at all levels of government and society develop.

Each of the actions described requires the president to prioritize support for communities that historically have been harmed ‘first and worst’ by the petrochemical industrial sector and the waste it creates: communities of color, Indigenous communities, and impoverished communities. Moreover, these actions will provide an opportunity to drive job growth in a new green economy, providing unionized jobs with family-sustaining wages in communities that need them the most. Workers in the petrochemical sector and

The world faces an indisputable plastic pollution crisis.

More than 99% of plastic is created from chemicals sourced from fossil fuels, including an oversupply of fracked gas, which is spurring a global boom in new plastic production. That plastic is causing serious environmental problems at every step of its lifecycle.

related industries will find their jobs fundamentally transformed, but not abandoned, in an economy and workforce that is inclusive, fair, and just for all people.

In 2021, we will urge President Biden to take these actions in the first year in office, in addition to the ten steps proposed by #ClimatePresident. The actions called for in #ClimatePresident, such as keeping fossil fuels in the ground by ending fossil fuel extraction on federal lands and waters and banning fracking, are inextricably linked to #PlasticFreePresident. Acting together, these plans will lead to a safer, healthier, and more equitable world for everyone.

The 8 PRIORITY PLASTIC ACTIONS

1. Use the purchasing power of the federal government to eliminate single-use plastic items and replace them with reusable products.

The federal government is the single largest purchaser of goods and services in the United States, spending more than $450 billion on products and services each year. That means the government is likely the country's largest consumer of disposable plastic products. By altering its product specifications to give preference to reusable products, the federal government could both significantly reduce the amount of plastics going to landfill and incinerators each year and spur demand for alternatives to single-use plastic products.

h Appoint a Plastic Pollution Czar to coordinate plastic reduction efforts amongst federal agencies and internationally.

h Direct the head of each federal agency to ensure that it does not purchase single-use plastic products, or allow them to be sold on federal property, with limited exemptions. Require each agency to submit a plan within the first six months of the administration detailing what it will do to eliminate single-use plastic products.

h Issue an Executive Order immediately prohibiting all federal agencies and federal contractors from purchasing or selling single-use plastic water bottles in national parks or other federal facilities.

h Direct the EPA to update its Environmentally Preferable Purchasing Program to clarify agencies must not acquire single-use plastics.

h Work with federal agencies to develop and implement a strategy to phase out single-use plastic products across the federal government. The new strategy should have numerical goals, timelines to achieve them and sufficient funding for any new capital costs, such as installing dishwashing equipment, water fountains, and other improvements.

h In any new stimulus or other spending bills, include funding for projects that reduce the use of plastic by the federal government and other federally funded projects or entities.

2. Suspend and deny permits for new or expanded plastic production facilities, associated infrastructure projects, and exports.

In the next 10 years, the petrochemical industry plans to increase plastics production by at least 35%, with more than 300 new projects slated for the United States alone. Using cheap fracked gas, the new and expanded facilities planned by the industry produce raw material for an endless deluge of throwaway plastic, approximately 40% of which is discarded within minutes. This dirty industry disproportionately fouls the air and water of poor communities and communities of color.

h Urge all federal agencies to use all existing legal authorities to deny permits for new plastics production and infrastructure projects, including but not limited to refineries, ethane crackers, propane dehydrogenation facilities, polymerization facilities, pipelines, gasification and pyrolysis facilities, natural gas liquid storage facilities and hubs, fractionation facilities, import and export terminals, and facilities that repolymerize plastic polymers into chemical feedstocks for use in new products or as fuel.

h Support a bill that bans fracking and bans new petrochemical infrastructure.

h Direct all federal agencies to use their full existing legal authority to object in writing to any new permit issued to plastics production and infrastructure projects by a State delegated authority under the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, or any other relevant federal statute.

h Halt the export of gas liquids, monomers, and polymers used for plastic production to the fullest extent allowed under federal law.

h Use the president's authority under the National Emergencies Act to reinstate the crude oil export ban.

3. Make corporate polluters pay and reject false solutions.

Plastic producers must be held accountable for the plastic pollution they have created. Voluntary measures like Operation Clean Sweep, small scale financial contributions like the industry-backed ALLIANCE to End Plastic Waste, and the plastics industry's promotion of "chemical recycling" and

"waste to energy" are all dangerous distractions from the massive, global plastic pollution problem we need to face. We need to place the responsibility where it belongs: on the industry that generates the waste.

h Support the Break Free From Plastic Pollution Act, which, among other things, would make plastic product manufacturers accountable for wasteful products and phase out unnecessary single-use plastic products.

h Ensure that stimulus or other bills supported by the administration do not fund industry's false solutions that exacerbate the plastic pollution crisis, such as chemical recycling, waste-to-fuel, waste-to-energy, incineration, gasification, pyrolysis, and plasma arc, which are harmful to human health and the environment and violate the principles of environmental justice. Veto any section of spending bills that fund the false solutions listed above.

h Direct the Attorney General to investigate all violations of law by plastic producers, transporters, and molders/formers impacting the environment and prosecute them to the maximum extent of the law for the damages they have caused.

h Direct the Federal Trade Commission, in its "Green Guide" on environmental marketing claims, to prohibit companies from falsely claiming their plastic products are recyclable.

h Direct the EPA and the National Institute of Standards and Technology to set minimum recycled content standards for beverage containers and other items.

h Impose tariffs on the import of single-use plastics, with exemptions for medical and personal protective equipment and accessibility options for persons with disabilities.

h Establish a moratorium on the construction of any new garbage incinerators and direct each state to develop a schedule to close existing municipal incinerators and develop a plan to close and remediate all incinerator ash landfills.

h Direct the EPA to develop new data collection methodologies to accurately report waste reduction, recycling, and composting rates throughout the United States. Require consistent reporting from local and state governments and the private sector.

h Direct the Department of Commerce to establish a new office on Recycling Market Development and Waste Reduction Innovation.

4. Advance environmental justice in petrochemical corridors.

Petrochemical companies continue to locate new and expanded plastics facilities near existing fossil fuel infrastructure, which means they are targeting the Gulf Coast, Appalachia, the Ohio River Valley, and other communities that already shoulder a heavy burden of oil, gas, and plastic industry pollution. Across the United States, these facilities are often located in and have a disproportionate impact on low-income and minority neighborhoods.

h Direct all federal agencies to ensure that communities of color, Indigenous communities, and low-income communities have access to public information and opportunities for meaningful public participation in all petrochemical permitting decisions.

h Direct EPA to promulgate regulations requiring continuous emissions and fence-line monitoring of pollutants for all plastics facilities, accurate and continuous recordkeeping, as well as the provision of records to the public.

h Direct EPA to conduct cumulative risk assessments to human health in all petrochemical and disposal industry permitting decisions, and as part of any National Environmental Policy Act processes.

h Develop measures that will increase clean and green long-term economic investment in communities, workers and economies.

h Direct the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to establish a petrochemical displacement fund to enable families facing immediate health risk to access funds to assist with relocation.

h Direct federal agencies to strengthen their relationship with Indian tribes, and ensure tribes are actively involved in the consultation process for all proposals affecting tribal lands and other properties that attach traditional religious and cultural significance.

h Direct the Department of Treasury, Health and Human Services, and the Attorney General to commence a study for mitigation and payment of damages to those disproportionately exposed to and harmed by industrial facilities that produce petrochemicals and plastics.

h Direct the Attorney General to investigate the linkages between petrochemical corridors and human trafficking, sexual violence, and the incidence of murdered and missing Indigenous women.

5. Update existing federal regulations to curtail pollution from plastics facilities by using best available science and technology.

The EPA has the authority and obligation to ensure that our nation's air, waterways, wildlife, and communities are not polluted by emissions and discharges from industrial facilities. To meet its obligations, it is tasked with developing and implementing pollution standards that reflect the best available technology and changing nature of the industries it regulates. Nevertheless, the agency continues to rely on decades-old standards when permitting plastics facilities and infrastructure, putting public health and the environment in harm's way.

h Direct EPA to update its Clean Air

Act new source performance standards (NSPS) regulations and National Emission Standards for Hazardous Air Pollutants (NESHAP) regulations that apply to plastics facilities and require they use only zero-emissions energy sources; direct EPA to initiate a rulemaking to designate ethane and methane as volatile organic compounds.

h Direct EPA to update its decades-old Clean Water Act regulations for plastics facilities to reflect the best available technology for conventional, non-conventional, and toxic pollutants from new and modified sources and establish a zero plastic standard for wastewater and stormwater discharges. Direct EPA to update Effluent Limitations Guidelines and Standards for new and expanded facilities to eliminate the discharge of toxic priority pollutants from wastewater and stormwater streams.

h Direct EPA to promulgate regulations to prevent the discharge of plastic from other entities that transport, make, and package plastic materials.

h Direct EPA to initiate rulemakings under the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act to (1) consider listing plastic as hazardous waste due to its public health and environmental harms, which would result in waste reduction measures, recordkeeping in transit, and strict criteria for disposal and export; (2) ensure proper disposal of plastic hazardous waste that does not include incineration; and (3) require the inclusion of best management practices for the disposal of plastics in state and regional solid waste plans.

h Direct EPA to conduct risk evaluations of plastics and update its Toxic Substances Control Act regulations to regulate plastics that pose an unreasonable risk to public health or the environment, and for those plastics (1) prohibit production of single-use products, except as necessary to supply medical and personal protective equipment, and accessibility options for persons with disabilities; (2) require manufacturers to track and ensure proper disposal or recycling of those plastics; and (3) require zero discharge of plastic pellets and powders in the generation, storage, and transportation of those plastics.

h Direct EPA to enter into an agreement with the National Academy of Sciences, the National Institutes of Health, and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to conduct a study and report on the environmental, public health, and environmental justice impacts of the plastic industry and its planned expansion, including the production, entire supply chain, end uses, disposal fate, and lifecycle impacts of plastic products. The study and report must also assess the best available technologies and practices that reduce or eliminate the environmental justice and pollution impacts of plastics facilities and associated infrastructure. These will inform EPA's revision of environmental regulations to mitigate these impacts.

h Direct the Food and Drug Administration to fund a nationwide study on the presence of microplastics in water and food products, including fish, fruits, and vegetables.

h Direct the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to fund a nationwide study on the presence of plastics in the human body and to determine how the presence of plastics in human blood and organs is affecting human health.

6. Stop subsidizing plastics producers.

For too long, the United States has subsidized the fossil fuel industry. It's time to stop the flow of financing to the petrochemical industry and the oil and gas industry that supplies its feedstocks.

h Direct the Department of Energy to end all loan and guarantee financing programs that increase plastics production, from extraction, pipelines, storage to manufacturing and export.

h Direct all federal agencies to ensure that polluters who enter into settlement agreements in connection with their violations of laws and regulations are not able to deduct the payments from their taxes.

h Direct the Department of Commerce to include alternatives to plastics as a cornerstone of its next Strategic Plan, including mechanisms for shifting federal financing and other support from the petrochemical industry to financing for alternatives to plastics, including reusable products as well as sustainable waste reduction and management technologies.

h Direct the EPA to enforce financial assurance obligations under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Remediation Act (Superfund) for oil refining and chemical manufacturing industries to ensure that companies are not self-bonded and are fully funding closure costs.

h Direct the Department of Commerce to advocate globally for the selection of U.S. suppliers of plastic alternatives in foreign government procurement opportunities, to provide assistance to green investors that want to do business in and with the United States, and to produce other opportunities to promote plastics solutions that reduce impacts to public health and the environment.

7. Join international efforts to address the global plastic pollution crisis through new and strengthened multilateral agreements.

For many years, the U.S. government has hindered the work of a growing number of countries to enact new and strengthen existing global governance structures to address the plastic pollution crisis. It is time for the U.S. to become a proactive partner with key allies to address the global plastic crisis by targeting production, consumption, and disposal.

h End the objection process to block the incorporation of the updated Basel Plastic Amendment into the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) Decision Annexes.

h Work with Congress to ratify the Basel Convention on the Control of Transboundary Movements of Hazardous Wastes and Their Disposal and finalize implementing legislation for the Convention and Basel Ban.

h End the export of plastic wastes (including for “recycling”) to non-OECD countries.

h Publicly acknowledge the full lifecycle impacts of plastic pollution and microplastics on human health and marine and terrestrial ecosystems, and the need for new global governance to address those harms.

h Negotiate in good faith a new legally binding convention on plastic pollution that addresses the full lifecycle of plastics, building on and complementing existing regional and global frameworks while addressing key gaps around global objectives, market restrictions, and a just and safe circular economy for plastics.

h Negotiate in good faith a new legally binding treaty to eliminate fossil fuel extraction, which provides the raw material of 99% of plastics.

h Convene a Major Economies Forum on Plastics to bring together the countries most responsible for consumption of plastic that ultimately ends up as waste, as well as the United Nations, to spur cooperative action to combat the plastics crisis.

8. Reduce and mitigate the impacts of discarded and lost fishing gear.

Abandoned, lost or otherwise discarded fishing gear, including gillnets and fishing traps/pots causes ecological and economic harms. This fishing gear is often called “ghost gear” because long after it is lost it entangles, captures, and kills sea turtles, seabirds, marine mammals, and fish. It changes the marine environment, poses navigational hazards, introduces plastic into the marine food web, and creates a persistent marine debris and pollution problem, with high cleanup costs.

h Direct the Administrator of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, in consultation with the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, to develop regulations for reducing litter and the environmental impacts of U.S. commercial and recreational fishing gear that is lost or abandoned. These regulations must include (1) reporting, labeling, traceability, and monitoring measures and (2) measures to eliminate or substantially reduce the impacts of lost and abandoned fishing gear on wildlife, including gear retrieval projects.

h Commit to working with NOAA, the states, and Congress to complete a plan and allocate new federal funding to eliminate abandoned, lost or otherwise discarded fishing gear from U.S. vessels and in the U.S. exclusive economic zone (EEZ).

h Revise the NOAA “Fishing for Energy” program that collects derelict fishing gear at 31 ports in 9 states, which recycles a limited amount of metal and sends the rest of the collected material to garbage incinerators. The incinerator element of this program should be eliminated.

CONCLUSION

President Biden can lead the United States towards a fundamental transformation of the plastics economy, one that reduces the amount of plastic produced and shifts responsibility for pollution onto the plastics manufacturers themselves.

Implementing the steps in this plan would protect frontline communities from the plastic industry's toxic emissions while also preventing plastic pollution from contaminating our rivers and oceans. These actions will resonate with the American public, which overwhelmingly supports measures to reduce our over-reliance on single-use plastic.

Through innovation and design, we can rediscover how to produce and deliver goods in a way that respects our communities and our planet.
