For this reason, in order to be eligible under this announcement, projects must include activities related to at least one of the following federal environmental statutes.

   1. Clean Air Act, Section 103(b)(3): conduct research, investigations, experiments, demonstration projects, surveys, and studies (including monitoring) related to the causes, effects (including health and welfare effects), extent, prevention, and control of air pollution.

All project workplans should include strategies for: 1) establishing or modifying public participation programs, 2) addressing local environmental and public health issues, 3) educating and empowering the community about environmental issues, and 4) approaches to building consensus and setting priorities through public participation programs.

4) How is public participation defined for purposes of this funding announcement? Public participation can be any process that directly engages the public in decision-making and gives full consideration to public input in making that decision. Public participation is a process, not a single event. It consists of a series of activities and actions by a sponsor agency over the full lifespan of a project to both inform the public and obtain input from them. Public participation contributes to better decisions because decision-makers have more complete information – in the form of additional facts, values, and perspectives obtained through public input – to bring to bear on the decision process. Decision-makers can then incorporate the best information and expertise of all stakeholders. Decisions are more implementable and sustainable because the decision considers the needs and interests of all stakeholders including vulnerable and overburdened communities, and stakeholders better understand and are more invested in the outcomes.
5) What are some types of allowable projects? Different forms that public participation might take include: (1) informing the public by providing information to help them understand the issues, options, and solutions; (2) consulting with the public to obtain their feedback on alternatives or decisions; (3) involving the public to ensure their concerns are considered throughout the decision process, particularly in the development of decision criteria and options; (4) collaborating with the public to develop decision criteria and alternatives and identify the preferred solution; and (5) empowering the public by placing final decision-making authority in their hands.

6) My organization is NOT an eligible organization under the EJ Small Grants Program. Does this prohibit our organization from participating in this opportunity? Organizations considered ineligible under EJSG are encouraged to partner with an eligible organization. Partners can receive EJ funding through subawards and/or contracts. So, while your organization may not be eligible to apply, it’s likely you can still receive a portion of the EJ funding through partnering. Please refer to the announcement for details in relation to applicant eligibility and partnership requirements.

7) My organization engages in lobbying federal/state/local governments. Does our lobbying activity make us ineligible under this announcement? Organizations may not use Federal grant funds or cost-sharing funds to conduct lobbying activities of any kind. Please refer to Section 3 of the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995. If a proposal is submitted that includes any ineligible tasks or activities, that portion of the proposal will be ineligible for funding and may, depending on the extent to which it affects the proposal, render the entire proposal ineligible for funding.
