Thanks Michele.

Good catch. I think for Q3 we were there on TTHM but just a hair over on HAA5 (rounded up to 61 v. 60 ppm limit). We should be back in full compliance with both TTHM and HAA5 with the Q4 sample. The issue related to actually having water in the elevated storage tanks for the first time in years as well as further upgrades to plant disinfection. It is like trying to repair your car's engine while driving it down the road. However, we think we are there from a plant/system performance perspective.

Best,

Paul
