PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

Working in the Human Services field for roughly 18 years has been a truly amazing journey. Through my experience, education and training, I have learned that every individual case is unique as no one's story nor background can be the same, only comparable. Helping others in whatever way I can if I can, is the main reason I became a social worker. I may not be able to solve every obstacle/dilemma that my clients may face, however I will try my best and to me that is what a Social worker is, a problem solver. My dedication to others, understanding/empathy of others and dependability to others is what has driven my continued dedication and longevity towards my career.
