Director Henson,

We write to share our support as members of the Nevada State Assembly for Clark County's application to the US Environmental Protection Agency's Climate Pollution Reduction Grants Implementation Grants General Competition. Clark County's efforts to seek funding to consolidate home and building improvement resources for residents and businesses through the All-In Building Improvement Hub represent an opportunity for transformational change in Southern Nevada.

The historic funding provided through the Inflation Reduction Act stands as a groundbreaking legislative initiative, particularly for states like Nevada that urgently require substantial resources for climate action that also addresses chronic stressors including housing affordability, rising energy costs, economic development and diversification, drought, and extreme heat. This program presents a unique opportunity to empower families and businesses throughout Nevada to make substantial strides toward a more sustainable and climate-resilient future.

Clark County's All-In Building Hub will bring together all of the local jurisdictions, utility programs, federal rebates and incentives, and nonprofit partners to provide a one-stop-shop helping interested building owners to understand their options and maximize financial assistance to make improvements. In the process, we will permanently lower energy bills and consumption, develop and deploy more contractors in the building performance sector, conserve our precious water resources, reduce air pollution, and improve the comfort and safety of our indoor spaces.

The Nevada Legislature has prioritized policy and budgetary action to harness the generational funding opportunities from the Inflation Reduction Act to accelerate climate action, infrastructure development, and economic diversification in our state. The All-In Building Hub aligns with and amplifies this focus, and we support fully funding this grant application.
